Free Hide IP is a relatively easy tool to use, but while it performs its task effectively, its usage is very limited.

With Internet security becoming more important than ever, a lot of people are looking for ways to hide their IP address. Privacy is a big deal at the moment, and everyone is surprised that Internet advertising targets them directly when they find out where they live. Such disturbing sharing can be prevented by hiding your IP address with free software like Free Hide IP.

Features of Free Hide IP

Hide IP with a few clicks

An IP address is basically a number assigned to your Internet connection that can be retrieved to find your location or ISP account. Free Hide IP is software designed to conceal your IP so that advertisers and companies cannot easily access this information.

Designed to work with all versions of Windows, both 32-bit and 64-bit, the software is in the background and is quite unobtrusive. You can even choose an IP from any country, useful if a website blocks certain countries. The software itself is very basic and easy to learn.

Quite basic but effective

Free Hide IP is not revolutionary software but it does a good job. You can use this tool to gain some online privacy for free, although the country selection is limited until you switch to the Pro version. One downside to this software, like most VPNs reroute your connection, is that it can slow down the connection.

Advantages

1. Very easy to install and use
2. Hide IP for added security
3. Allows you to select your country

Defect

1. Can slow down the connection a lot
2. Choices are limited on the free version
