

Drop Facebook's heart, add a heart effect on Facebook to Hali, XOXO

Facebook has updated its unique 'heart attack' effect when users comment or status writing has 2 Hali and XOXO words. Soon after, the Facebook interface will be flooded with flying hearts.

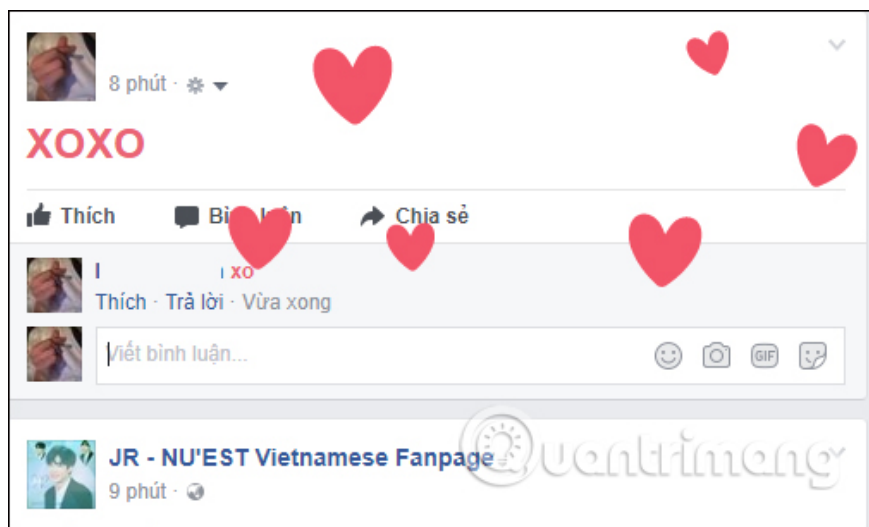

After the Harry Potter magic effect on Facebook, Facebook recently added a new effect of flying hearts on the interface. When users just need to comment or status writing with 1 in 2 words is Hali and XOXO, then your Facebook will immediately 'explode'. The interface will appear flying hearts fluttering with extremely beautiful effects.

Every new effect, Facebook sends messages to users. For example, the flower emoticon to celebrate Mother's Day, or the Harry Potter magic effect to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the first Harry Potter series. So what does the 'explosion heart' effect with Hali and XOXO mean?

Heart effect on Facebook interface

If you often use abbreviated characters in SMS, then some readers will know what the meaning of the symbol XOXO is. XOXO is understood as Hugs and Kisses. Symbol X means Hug (Hug) and O symbolizes Kiss (Kiss).

The starting source for these two symbols is unknown at what point, and why it was used for Hug and Kiss. However, in Western countries it was previously used to express the sender's love to the recipients in each letter. And then, this XO character is also used frequently in SMS language to this day.

With the word Hali originated from Finnish and translated into Vietnamese also means Hug. When we enter a Hali comment or write status on Facebook , there will also be a flying heart effect on the interface.

In particular, when you use Thai language ??? ? on comment or satus also appears a heart effect. In Thai, ??? ? means kiss and also turns pink when we write on Facebook.

Perhaps Facebook is building its own social network with flying heart effect, the interface of love in many different languages. This also partly increases the interaction of users with the most populous social network in the world. Hopefully in the future, Facebook will add Vietnamese to the "flying heart effect language dictionary", not just English or Finnish as it is now.

Currently most Facebook accounts have been updated with this flying heart effect. We just need to comment on any post, or status writing has 1 in 3 Hali, XOXO and ??? ? characters so that the interface appears pink hearts. Let 'drop heart' for me and others on Facebook.
