

Enable Text-to-Speech feature in iOS

Text-to-Speech (built-in text to speech) is built into the iOS operating system. However, for many new iPhone or iPad users, this feature is not yet known.

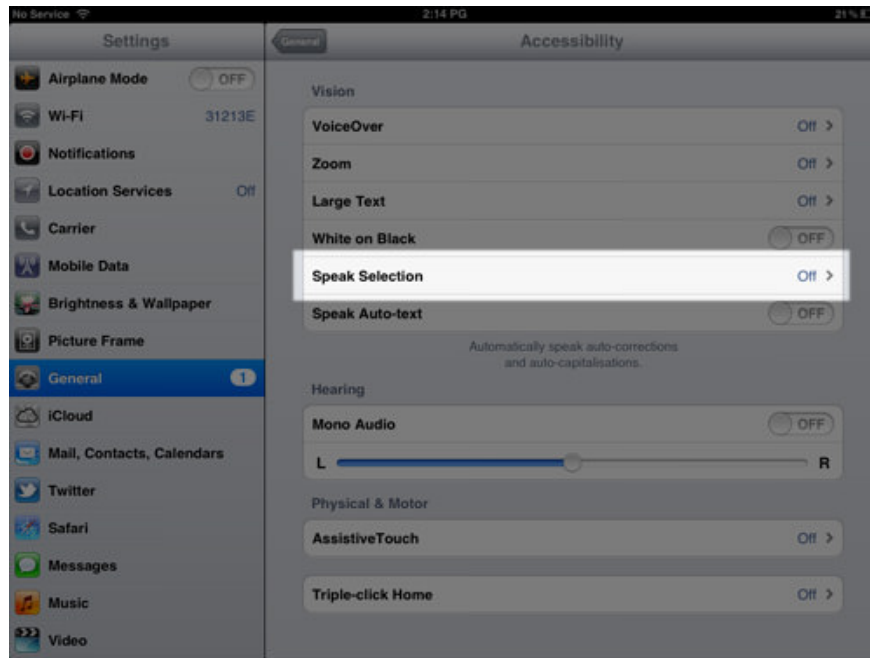

Since the new iOS versions, you can enable the Text-to-Speech feature to convert text data into speech. Text-to-Speech is built into iOS operating system. However, for many new iPhone or iPad users, this feature is not yet known. In the article below, Network Administrator will guide you through steps to enable Text-to-Speech on iOS devices.

Step 1:

To enable Text-to-Speech on an iOS device, first open the Setting application, select General , then select Accessibility .

Step 2:

Click Speak Selection.

Step 3:

Picture 3 of Enable Text-to-Speech feature in iOS

Now that the Speak Selection option is in OFF mode, you switch the option to ON mode and adjust the Speaking Rate . The Speaking Rate determines how fast or slow the reading speed is.

Step 4:

Now you can open any web page, touch and hold the text until the option appears. Black out the text you want iOS to read. After you've made your selection, click the Speak button.

In addition to web pages, you can use Text-to-Speech with all documents on your iOS device.

Explore more:

1. Optimize battery life for devices running iOS 8

2. Instructions for installing iOS 7 for old iPhone and iPad users

3. Things to know before upgrading to iOS 9

Good luck!

You finished reading the article "Enable Text-to-Speech feature in iOS" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.