

Explain why the level 6 squad of the Arena of Truth is always the strongest team

In this article, I will explain why I should build a level 6 squad in the Arena of Truth instead of having to build a level 9 squad, including some ways to build a strong squad at level 6 in DTCL.

There are quite a lot of players in the Arena of Truth that players should build the strongest squad at level 6 and many players have wondered why should build the strongest squad when at level 6 and not at level. other degrees?

In DTCL, many gamers still think that building a squad at level 9 will reach the highest strength. However, the players often think that this is wrong and why so, please find out according to the information in this article.

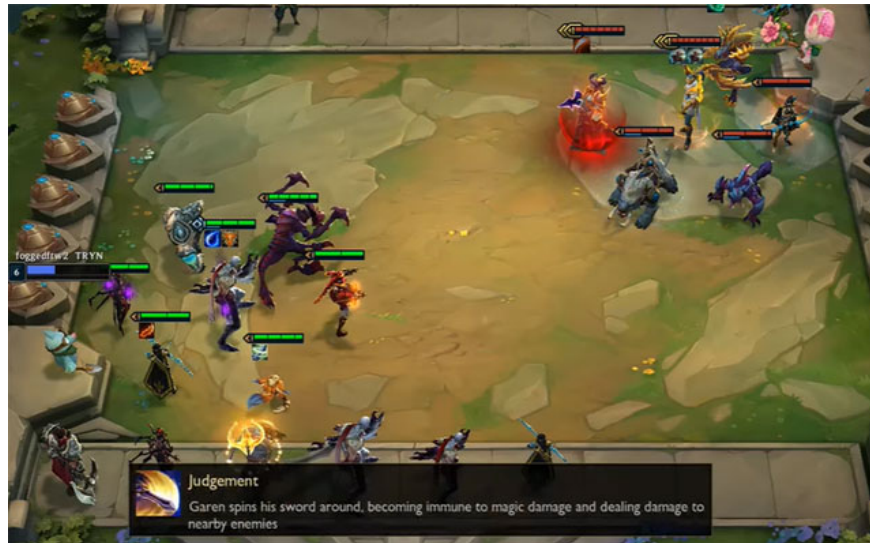

1. How to counter Evelynn and the Devil's Field of the Truth Arena
2. Instructions to play Pantheon Arena of Truth
3. Some simple tips to help you climb high in the Arena of Truth

Why is the level 6 team the strongest in the DTCL

Priority to level 9 as quickly as possible is not necessary

Why is it not necessary to level up in the DTCL, that's because if you want to level up, players will have to accumulate a huge amount of money. About 50 - 60 gold to be able to level 9.

Spending that amount of gold can be said to be quite large for a slot of the squad. What you should do if you have that money in hand is to upgrade some of your main generals to 2 stars, even to 3 stars.

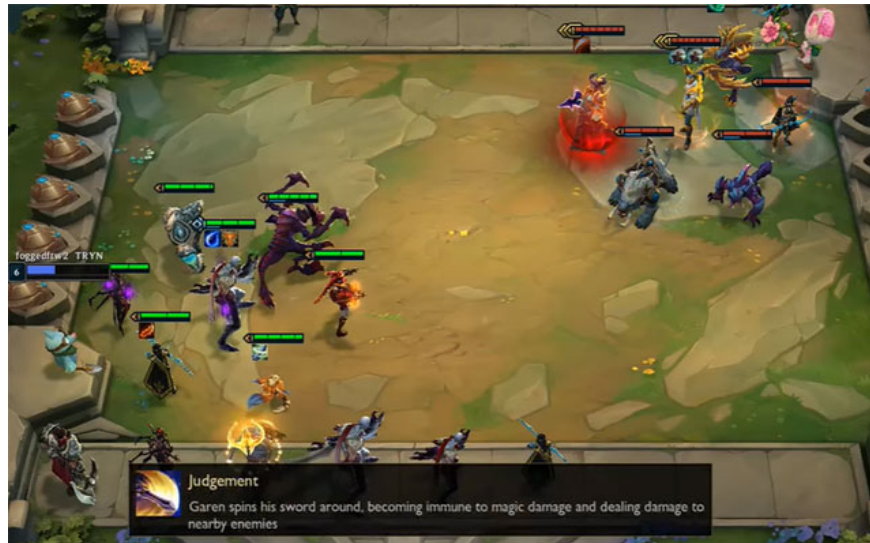

In addition, you have to accrue interest and will suffer continuous losses and your level 9 squad will not be upgraded at all. Obviously this way of playing is quite risky and is advised by the players to stay away.

In addition, you also know that the closer you are to the end of the match, the more blood you will lose in each loss. Chances are that you have not reached level 9 then you will have to receive a defeat at the bottom of the table.

So in order to have a more effective squad, it is best to stop at a level that has the ability to find 5 gold champions and can roll continuously, that way will be much more effective and reasonable.

Line 6 in the Arena of Truth will bring you to victory much more

Although the level 6 squad is not as crowded as the level 9 squad, this is the key to your pair's success. If you have a strong squad at this level, your health will be better preserved.

You will be able to have a steady winning streak and when you have completed your dream team, you can upgrade to levels 8 - 9 to recruit strong generals into your team.

If at this level 6 and you still see your team still has many 1 star generals, upgrade them to 2-3 stars. Don't be afraid to spend money comparing a large amount of money but losing blood continuously and then losing with the money to upgrade your squad to be more stable.

In addition, you can also pressure the enemy team to change them constantly if there is a strong enough picture at level 6, which is also an advantage to help you win easily. Normally, if you lose too much blood, most gamers will lose their temper and throw all their strength to the level of generals and try to hold out a few more matches.

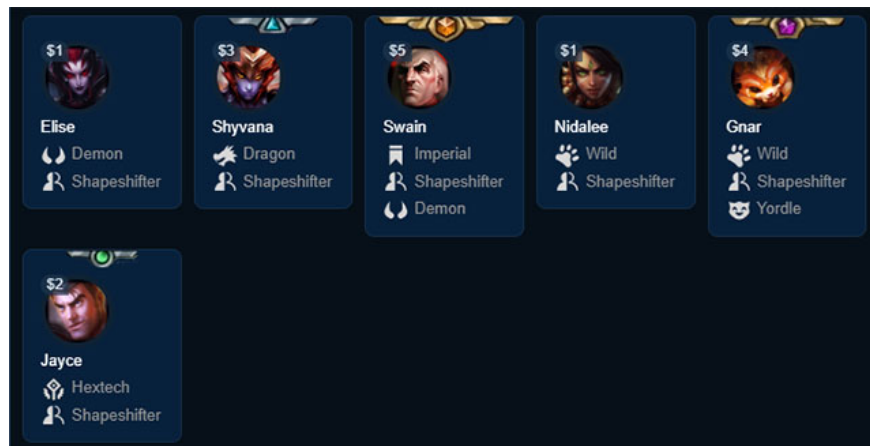

Some strong level 6 squads that you can use

You can use some pretty powerful roster at level 6 in the current version of the Arena of Truth. Such as the Void - Assassins or Transfiguration would be very reasonable choices. It is even more perfect when you have an extra

2-Gladiator combo like Cho'Gath and Rek'Sai to cast one into the Void team, it is definitely "unmatched".

Alternatively, players can consider using a Transfiguration at level 6 when low-cost champions like Nidalee, or Jayce and Elise can be purchased very early.

The advantage of the Transfiguration is to combine many heroes to form strong combos such as Evelynn, Varus, to get Devil's combo from Elise for example. Another thing is when playing the lineup, the player can use many tactics and still retain the inherent strength of this squad.

It's really worth spending a large amount of money to increase the number of hero slots in your squad compared to keeping the level and upgrading the generals to 2-3 stars to have a squad strong enough to deal with. If you start with other teams, you know which is better.

You finished reading the article "Explain why the level 6 squad of the Arena of Truth is always the strongest team" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.