900 The statue on the resurrection island has been damaged quickly

Accordingly, the giant Moai statues are lying on the grass slopes of a volcano on Easter Island, which has been listed on the world heritage list with a total of about 900 giant stones of all kinds discovered. .

However, a new statistic shows that many Moai statues are deteriorating at a rapid pace and the stone carvings begin to fade away like a regular stone block. They are suffering from the harsh effects of weather, climate change and researchers say that needing a deeper conservation effort to maintain them, particularly endangered is the stone heritage of Rapa Nui.

During the new excavation

A new archaeological excavation project led by Ms Van Tilburg shows that hundreds and thousands of people visited Easter Island and were startled to see a series of giant humanoid stone statues with discrete bodies and heads, even conjoined.

Van Tilburg and the archaeological group and local people have excavated them. Most show that these blocks are surrounded by carved figures, giant tattoos. They have a crescent-shaped symbol, sophisticated carvings on the rock back. Archaeological experts believe that it is a symbol of narrow narrow boats that the ancient Polynesians used to cross the island.

They may belong to the year 100 - 1800

New giant stone statues on Easter Island average over 100 meters tall, each weighing about 80 tons. They are statues, carved statues, which can be made around 100 - 1800.
