Gavin Munro, the British designer created a new furniture production method: planting trees in plastic molds, taking care and trimming, so that after growing up they will form furniture.

1. The mysterious dead tree makes birds die
2. New burial method: turning dead people into trees

This method of producing furniture made of wood is extremely complicated and time consuming. First he designed plastic frames, then caught the wood stems that developed under this framework. During the development process Gavin must constantly prune and weave branches into each other to form a solid, complex structure for the item.

Gavin selected a variety of plants to produce unique wood furniture such as ash, willow, oak, .

It takes 5 years to make a chair from willow wood and for a oak chair it takes a decade. Therefore, these furniture products are also extremely expensive. A wooden chair willow with the lowest price is about 3000 - 3500 USD, in addition to accessories combined with electric lights for decoration cost from about 1500-2000 USD.

The process of "making" the furniture products by this method is extremely elaborate.

Thanks to a combination of modern technology and science, Gavin has created a unique art furniture, 1-0-2 in the world.

British designer shared that, initially, his idea was strongly opposed by family and friends. But he still insisted on pursuing his dream. Finally, after a long period of labor, he succeeded.
