

Facebook tested the private comment feature, set the right to read comments

Facebook is testing a new security feature that applies to personal comments.

Facebook is testing a new security feature that applies to personal comments. Accordingly users can comment on the post but only those who are allowed to see it can read it.

Clicking on the lock icon will open a selection of settings including: friends and post owners, only friends, post owners and commenters, everyone.

Setting the right to read comments will look like this

Currently this test is only available on some users' accounts. But it can be seen that the benefit of this feature is great when many people still want to have privacy, do not want others to see everything they like, comment on social networks.

See more: Did you know how to create the Like button effect on Facebook?

Why shouldn't you argue with anyone on Facebook?

Want to disappear from the Internet, do you think erasing your social network account is done?

You finished reading the article "Facebook tested the private comment feature, set the right to read comments" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

