

Firefox 3.6.4 has the ability to 'hang'

According to Mozilla, since June 23, global users have been able to update the new version of Firefox - the most stable version and the best security.

According to Mozilla, since June 23, global users have been able to update the new version of the Firefox browser - the most stable and most secure version .

The most prominent feature of Firefox 3.6.4 version is that more than 400 million users of this browser in the world will be equipped with the ability to 'hang' (crash - the browser stops operating automatically or suddenly shuts down ). New features are available on both Windows and Linux versions and operate based on the isolation mechanism of the application (plug-in, add-on) by third parties. develop.

In the past, frequent 'hang' was the biggest annoyance for users of 'fire' browsers, especially when they watch videos online or play games right on the browser. With this new version, every time the plug-in is suspended or suddenly turned off, users can quickly get rid of the problem and continue to enjoy by pressing the Refresh button in the browser.

Today, the bundled applications developed by third parties are always an indispensable part of modern web browsers because it provides a large number of other features that the browser does not have to expand. user performance. Owning a huge 'store' of add-ons is also Firefox's strength and makes it fast for the second largest market share browser in the world after Microsoft IE.

Mozilla developer also recommends that users should minimize the risk of add-ons that cause browser crashes by regularly checking and updating the latest versions of these add-ons (On Firefox browser window, select Tool >> Add - ons >> Find updates ).

At the time, just after its launch, the new Firefox 3.6.4 has the ability to suspend Adobe Flash, Apple Quicktime and Microsoft Silverlight applications on Windows or Linux-based computers. Other applications will continue to be added by Mozilla in the near future.

To upgrade to this new version, users just need to do a very simple operation: Select menu Help >> Check for Updates or access directly to www.firefox.com and download.

You finished reading the article "Firefox 3.6.4 has the ability to 'hang'" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.