As reported, Microsoft will bring virtual assistant Cortana to Windows 10 operating system. And recently the image of Cortana on Windows 10 has appeared to give us a first look at some features.

What users are interested in is, what can Cortana do when it integrates on a Windows computer. Not surprisingly, the virtual assistant on the computer does quite a lot of work on Windows Phone. You can add items to the calendar, events are scheduled and will show up in Cortana.

In addition, users can search for maps and directions just like on Windows Phone. Another function for computers, if you call someone to use Cortana, the device will open Skype and dial the contact of course that person must be in the contact list.

Features and many factors may be changed before the official release, it is likely that other information about Cortana will soon leak in the near future.
