

Galaxy S4 Fire, get HTC One M8

An unfortunate user burned a Galaxy S4 while charging overnight, while Samsung ignored the change of product, HTC generously offered to give away the One M8.

An unfortunate user burned a Galaxy S4 while charging overnight, while Samsung ignored the change of product, HTC generously offered to give away the One M8.

A user on Reddit nicknamed " TweektheGeek " said that his Galaxy S4 smartphone has been burnt after charging overnight, despite using genuine chargers and batteries.

The Galaxy S4 is on fire

After contacting Samsung about the incident, the company promised to exchange a new phone and include a box to pack the burnt phone to the carrier. However, this person only received the box. After many contacts, Samsung's promising new phone has not been sent and the incident has been ignored.

TweektheGeek continues his story on Reddit . Suddenly he received a response from a product manager of HTC, promising to donate an HTC One M8 to this less fortunate user.

The HTC did not offer any conditions to donate a One M8, only suggested in case Samsung changed the new device, the user should donate the One M8 to charity or bid it and raise money. for charitable purposes.

GSM Arena said, this is a very ' beautiful ' move by HTC, a rare thing so far. In the past, there were many times companies gave away their super products, but not in the same case as HTC has just done.

You finished reading the article "Galaxy S4 Fire, get HTC One M8" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
