

Gamers almost have to cut their fingers because they play games on a cracked smartphone

A 23-year-old male player named Azuan Iqbal Abdullah Sani in Malaysia almost lost his thumb because he refused to replace the cracked protective plate.

Many people see the screen or sticker protect their smartphone cracked, cracked and not change immediately but continue to use because they still touch well and do not affect much to the normal experience. However, this is potentially risky, causing users to experience serious accidents.

Specifically, a 23-year-old male player named Azuan Iqbal Abdullah Sani in Malaysia almost lost his thumb because he refused to replace the cracked protective plate.

The reason is that this player is still plying the screen of his smartphone to play games for 4 months despite the cracked stickers. This caused his thumb to appear oddly large with black spots.

Although there was no tear or bleeding, the swelling made Azuan suffer. He went to see the doctor for an examination. As a result, Azuan's finger has a serious infection. Although treated with antibiotics, not only did the situation not get better but it became more severe, the pain became worse. Azuan was hospitalized, even though the doctor diagnosed that to remove tiny pieces of glass that had been stuck in the fingertips causing necrosis, he might have to undergo an operation.

Toughened glass when cracked must be replaced to avoid potential risks. Artwork: Internet.

Thankfully, Azuan did not have to amputate his thumb as the doctor's original diagnosis.

After treatment, Azuan shared that it was too easy to replace the new screen protector, but he did not. That bigotry caused him to be disabled if treated later.

Azuan adds, he hopes that people will immediately replace the screen protector or new screen if they crack after knowing what happened to him.

1. Users forget to increase the brightness of the MacBook Pro screen, Apple thought the device was broken and spent more than $ 10,000 for warranty
2. Samsung Galaxy S8 saved 20 lives in a boat crash in the Philippines

You finished reading the article "Gamers almost have to cut their fingers because they play games on a cracked smartphone" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.