

Gamers cheat in the match against the Vietnamese team in the CS: GO tournament

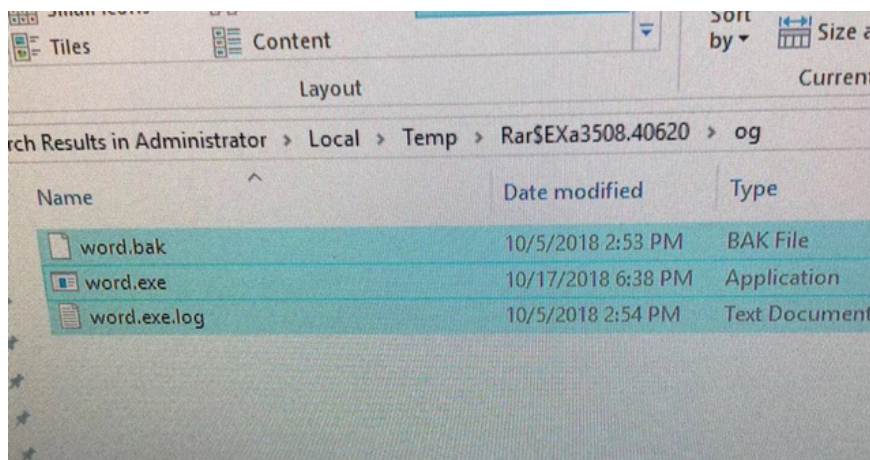

At the professional EXTREMESLAND2018 CS: GO tournament in Shanghai, referees discovered an OpTic India team player using hack / cheat software during the match against Revolution, a representative of Vietnam.

At the professional EXTREMESLAND2018 CS: GO tournament in Shanghai, referees discovered an OpTic India team player using hack / cheat software during the match against Revolution, a representative of Vietnam.

Specifically, in the process of competing gamers Nikhil Kumawat or also known as ingame "forsaken" is ready to shoot down opponents as soon as they approach him, even this guy has a shot through the wall unexpectedly accurate. This anomaly caused the attention to pay attention to the forsaken and decided to suspend the match to search his device.

This player opposes when the referee checks his device.

Forsaken tried to stop the referee's inspection but failed. After checking, the referee discovered a "word.exe" file in the Explore window. As it turned out, this guy used a hack software that automatically locked in to nearby targets.

This guy changed the name of the fraud app to the world name.

This player had similar fraudulent actions in 2017 and was banned for 6 months by the Valve.

With the exchange of OpTic India, which has been eliminated by the lack of fairplay, Vietnam 's Revolution team is allowed to enter the next round. Forsaken may have to receive a lifetime penalty from Valve for his fraudulent act.

After this incident, Jesal Pare, director of development of OpTic India team apologized to the organizers, participating teams, fans and apologized to his country for not managing the players. He also shared more, the rest of the team did not know forsaken fraud.

OpTic team was also dissolved shortly after.

See more:

1. Blind gamers take down 7,600 networks in the game Call of Duty: WWII
2. This is how AI defeats the best Dota 2 players
3. Super Mario Bros. "Island break" player For nearly 5 minutes, set a new world record

You finished reading the article "Gamers cheat in the match against the Vietnamese team in the CS: GO tournament" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.