

Genshin Impact: More information about the new World Boss coming soon

The Genshin Impact community has just received a leak about the 'new' elemental World Boss that is expected to appear soon in the upcoming update.

The world of Genshin Impact is filled with fearsome monsters ready to take on the Traveler at any moment. Most enemies have one or more elements in the skill set, which is also a prominent feature of this game.

With recent rumors claiming that the addition of a new element is imminent, players can expect a host of new enemies with the Thao element to appear. A recent leak of Genshin Impact has revealed more information about one of the upcoming new World Bosses.

With the entire Inazuma storyline coming to an end, fans are expecting a brand new Genshin Impact area to appear in upcoming updates.

According to many leaked sources, the new area will finally bring the long-awaited Thao element into the spotlight. A well-known leaker named Project Celestia has revealed more details about the game's first Thao Elemental World Boss.

The current beta includes several files named 'Jade-Plumed Terrorshroom', which is expected to be its official name. This Boss seems to drop an item called 'Nagadus Emerald Gem', which seems to be used as an upgrade material for the character, possibly a Grass-type character in the future.

Project Celestia also announced that this new Boss may not be present in the upcoming Genshin Impact 2.8 update. Assuming that the previous leaks about the 2.8 version of the last Inazuma update are true, players can expect the new World Boss to appear in patch 3.0 and possibly in late August.

However, recent rumors have revealed that the 2.7 or 2.8 update will be shorter than the regular updates to make up for the recent three-week update delay, which means 3.0 could arrive weeks earlier than expected.

Thao is the only Genshin Impact element not available on any playable characters at this time. There is a lot of talk surrounding its arrival, and it is probably the most anticipated addition to the game. The arrival of a new element will likely affect the current character's strength rating as it will introduce additional Thao elemental reactions.

The new major update will also introduce a new country called Sumeru. Many NPCs in the game describe Sumeru as a mysterious region of forest and desert. When it comes to the new Tao elemental characters, Baizhu and Yaoyao have been rumored to be coming since the game's return in 2020. Yaoyao is the only original beta character missing from the playable list. Okay. In addition to these two, players can expect the Guardian God of Sumeru, Kusanali, to arrive shortly after the 3.0 release.
