

Gold Macbook Air costs $ 5,000

The ultra-thin MacBook Air laptop is covered by the Computerchoppers (USA) with a 24 karat layer of gold and a colorful sapphire stone for the apple logo to push the price up to $ 5,000.

The ultra-thin MacBook Air laptop is covered by the Computerchoppers (USA) with a 24 karat layer of gold and a colorful sapphire stone for the apple logo to push the price up to $ 5,000.

The real gold layer covers the entire case and the keyboard surface and the keystrokes create luxurious beauty for the MacBook Air. In addition, the sapphire gemstones are attached to the color of the round globe in the image of the apple logo, creating a sparkling highlight in the golden color of the case. Currently, MacBook Air is available in Vietnam and sells for about $ 2,250 (it only costs $ 1,799 on Apple's online store).

MacBook Air uses a processor for 1.6 Ghz and a hard drive with a size of 1.8 inches 80GB. The front edge of the machine is 4 mm thick, the back edge is 19 mm thick (notebook models are usually about 30 mm thick). It has a 13.3-inch screen, LED lighting technology application, Intel GMA X3100 graphics, and supports Wi-Fi 802.11n connectivity and Bluetooth wireless connectivity 2.1.

This gold-covered MacBook Air is priced at $ 5,000, but Computerchoppers also offers the option of a 14-karat MacBook Air version of $ 3,000. Users can order this computer online at Computerchoppers website here. Some pictures of this version of MacBook Air covered with gold:

You finished reading the article "Gold Macbook Air costs $ 5,000" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.