

Google encountered a service interruption

Many users of Gmail, Hangouts, YouTube or other Google services are inaccessible or too slow. However, the situation has been overcome quickly.

Many users of Gmail, Hangouts, YouTube or other Google services are inaccessible or too slow. However, the situation has been overcome quickly.

A few hours ago, many Google users in areas such as Europe, America, Canada, India . flooded Twitter complaining about the particularly slow connection to its services like Gmail, Google+, Hangouts, YouTube, Google Docs . Google's home page is still accessible and searchable.

Gmail is one of the services affected in Google's disruption.

Taking advantage of this opportunity, Google's rival Yahoo quickly posted Twitter to 'kick' Google. The content of this tweet is 'Gmail temporarily unavailable' with an illustrated image. However, Yahoo removed the tweet and apologized publicly to Google, also on Twitter.

About an hour after the breakdown, all Google services returned to normal. Google announced 'almost every issue' has been resolved on Twitter.

You finished reading the article "Google encountered a service interruption" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

