

Google launched DDoS 'unique'

Even with the same name as NVIDIA's handheld game console, Google's Project Shield is a completely independent project that will help a lot of small websites.

Even with the same name as NVIDIA's handheld game console, Google's Project Shield is a completely independent project that will help a lot of small websites.

According to Endgadget , this project was started by Google after receiving a request through Google Ideas ( another project that offers solutions to social problems ). Made by social activists in the Middle East, Shield helps small websites to " deliver content through Google " to combat DDoS attacks.

Currently, the new Project Shield project is in the " closed " testing phase: the parties wishing to participate will have to register to receive an invitation from the homepage of this project .

You finished reading the article "Google launched DDoS 'unique'" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.