

Google launched Google Go worldwide, extremely light version with many useful features, can replace the Google application

Google Go is an improved version of Google Search Lite, lightweight, compact and full of extremely useful features suitable for Android devices with a poorly configured configuration.

Google Go is an improved version of Google Search Lite, lightweight, compact and full of extremely useful features suitable for Android devices with a poorly configured configuration. This is a good replacement for the Google app available on Android.

Since 2017, Google has launched a version of Google Go, but it is only released in a limited number of countries. But recently, this technology giant has officially launched Google Go worldwide. Right now, you can download and experience this useful application.

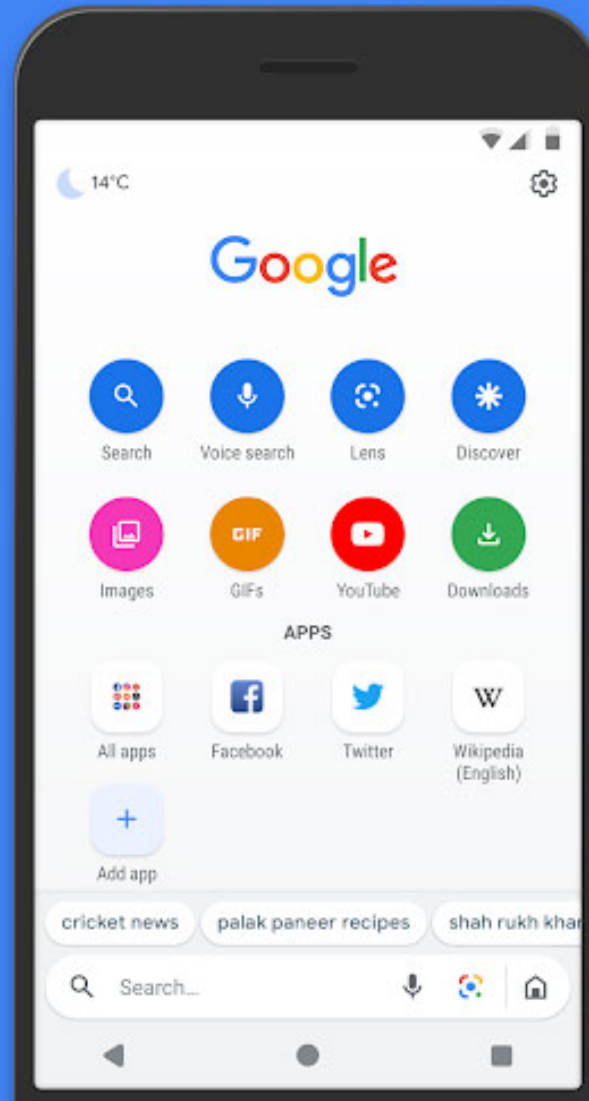

1. Google Go: A lighter, faster way to search

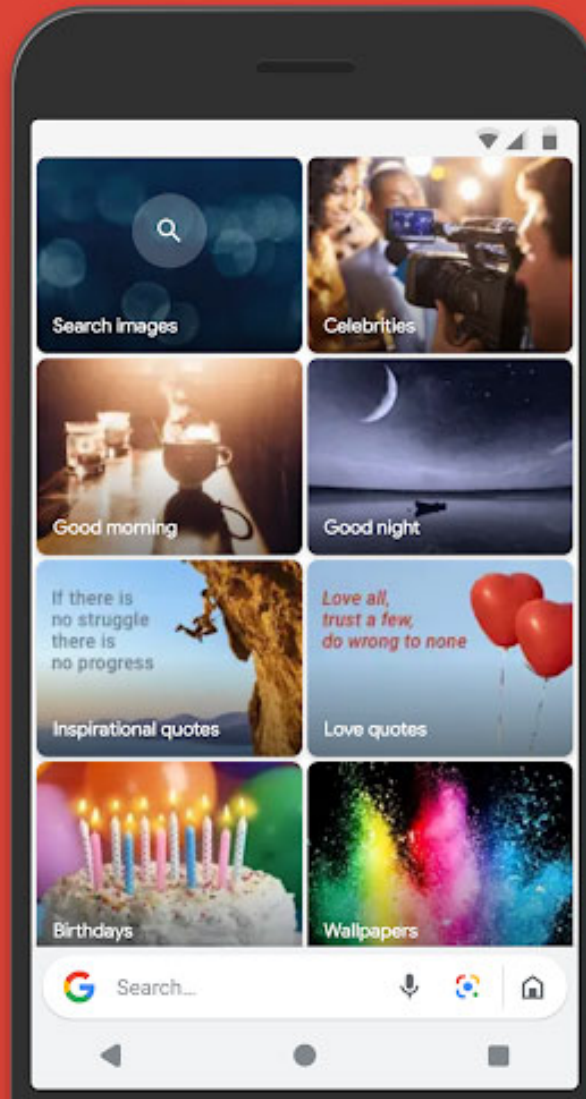

Google Go is integrated with many utilities that allow users to search by voice, search for images, access YouTube .

The application also adds a new feature, Lens (Lens), that allows users to use the device's camera to read, translate and search. With this new feature, when you want to translate or read any type of text, users simply open the Lens and point the device's camera at it, the application will translate or read text for you.

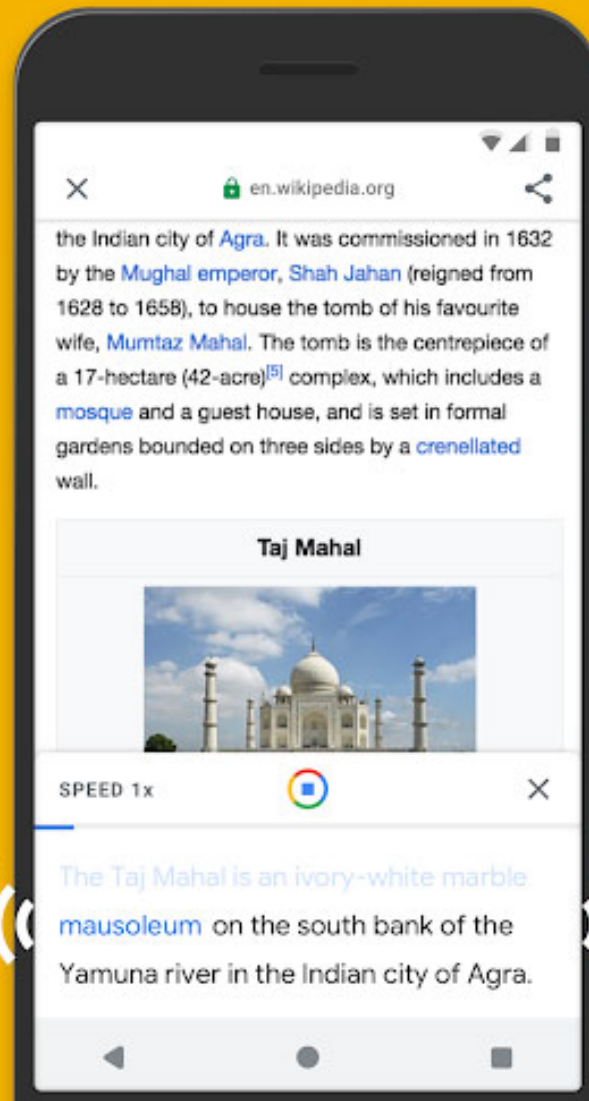

All your interests
in one app

Find and share images and GIFs

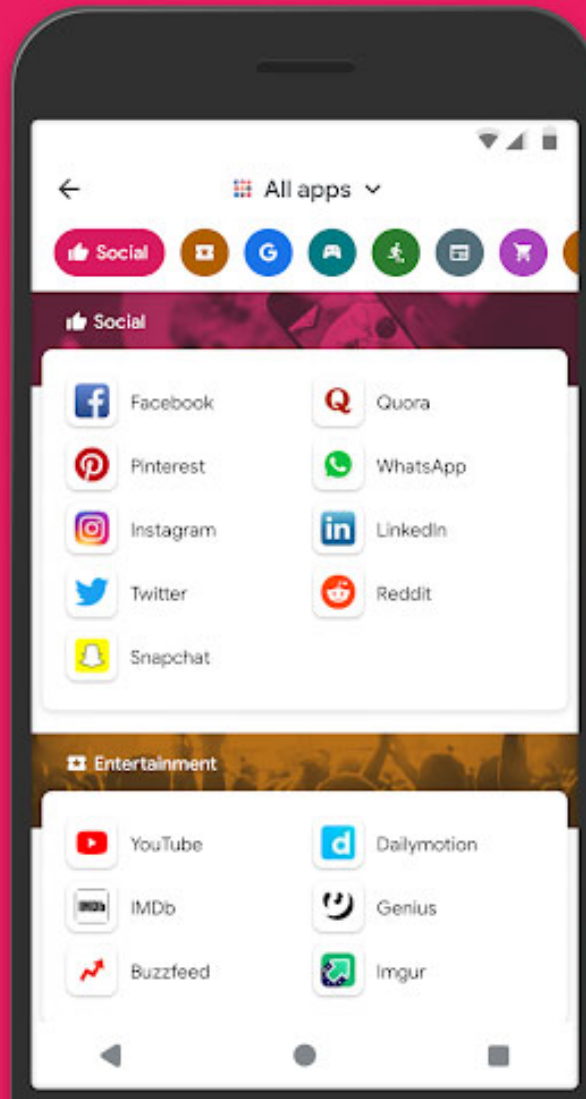

Make Google
read it

Search and translate with your camera

Quick access to the best of the web

Switch language any time

1. Google released the Socratic application, which helps students solve photo assignments

You finished reading the article "Google launched Google Go worldwide, extremely light version with many useful features, can replace the Google application" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.