

Google Pay is available on the web and iOS

Google Pay - the combined payment system Google launched earlier this year - is available on Chrome and Android. Google is also launching versions of other browsers such as Safari, Firefox and even iOS that will soon be available.

Google Pay - the combined payment system Google launched earlier this year - is available on Chrome and Android. Google is also launching versions of other browsers such as Safari, Firefox and even iOS that will soon be available.

Google Pay on new platforms will also work similarly to current Chrome and Android, automatically save no matter where you sign in to your Google account, which makes it easy to pay, quickly pay in stores with Google Pay.

Google Pay will support more platforms, easier to pay anywhere, anytime

In addition, there will be some features that only work on Chrome versions, such as the ability to automatically fill invoices and shipping information.

See more:

1. Google officially launched Google Pay payment service to replace Android Pay globally
2. Has Apple Pay supported in Vietnam yet?
3. Apple Pay Cash began to deploy globally

You finished reading the article "Google Pay is available on the web and iOS" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

