Recently, Google has accepted Vietnamese currency on the payment system of Google Play app store. Accordingly, if the user previously had to pay in USD when buying an application and through a conversion factor, they can now pay exactly in Vietnamese dong.

Specifically, the Vietnamese Google Play interface will now change the amount below the paid apps in units " đ " ( Vietnam dong ). This is a number that has been converted by Google, users only need to pay by the exact amount listed. However, banks may charge an additional 2-4% of the costs for these transactions.

Thereby, Google has begun to pay more attention to Vietnam, as well as developers and users here. Hopefully in the future, Google will continue to have changes to better serve the needs of Android Vietnamese users.
