

Google Slides can be used offline

On January 24, Google announced that it had activated the add-on feature for the Google Slides application (which works similar to PowerPoint).

On January 24, Google announced that it had activated the add-on feature for the Google Slides application (which works similar to PowerPoint).

According to SlashGear, this will help users to easily view and edit saved documents on Google Slides without an internet connection. When there is an internet connection, these data are saved to Google Drive.

Google Slides can now view and edit without an internet connection

To use Google Slides in offline form, users need to use Chrome web browser, already have an account activated in Google Drive service.

It is known that Google has previously activated offline use for the Google Docs application (which works similarly to Word).

You finished reading the article "Google Slides can be used offline" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.