Tips for playing Free Fire to loot items quickly and effectively

1. Land before your opponent

First, check the flight path and choose a reasonable landing point to quickly loot resources. If you arrive first, you will have an advantage because the person who arrives later will not have much left. Whether playing solo or in a team, landing early is important. Ideally, the team should have at least one person equipped with the Falcon support to land faster. If you are slower than your opponent, change direction instead of fighting them.

2. Take advantage of the means

Using vehicles is the fastest way to move around in Free Fire. Motorcycles are fast, easy to control, and good at dodging bullets but offer no protection. On the other hand, cars are slower but offer better protection and can be used to take down enemies.

Kenta is a new character with the ability to create a shield, blocking damage from the front. This is a useful skill in combat. If you want to improve your level when playing Kenta, please refer to the appropriate skill combos via the link below.

3. Prioritize looting high-rise buildings

Buildings in Free Fire are ideal places to get lots of items, often containing high-level weapons and armor. They also help you hide, avoid revealing your location, and counterattack effectively. Therefore, experts always prioritize looting items in buildings when entering a new area. Once you have collected enough items, move to another area to find more necessary equipment.

4. Use the map navigation tools

Garena has added several fixed transportation tools to Free Fire, such as catapults and ziplines on all three maps. Players can simply go to this location to quickly move to another area, making looting more efficient. However, be careful because enemies can ambush nearby.

5. Carry a light weapon when moving

Movement speed in Free Fire depends on the weapon you are holding. To pick up items faster, choose a light weapon, which usually has low damage. It is best to use your fists or melee weapons to achieve maximum speed. When encountering an enemy, quickly switch to your main weapon to fight.

As mentioned, fast looting in Free Fire is an important factor in every match, but not everyone masters it. If you want to become a master, you need to clearly understand and apply the 5 basic rules above.
