

'Hack' the dinosaur game of Google Chrome to make your T-Rex immortal and max speed

You can use the cheat code to 'hack' this game to help your T-rex win the endless race in a very simple way.

Mini game T-rex, an endless running game created by Google to help users can entertain and kill time when losing the Internet. This game has a very simple way to play, users just need to press the Space Bar key, up and down arrows to control a dinosaur away and avoid obstacles on the desert road.

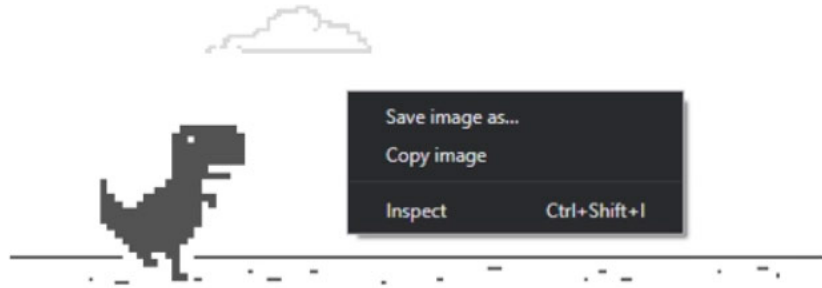

So far, T-rex has gradually become a companion of millions of users while waiting for the Internet to resume operation.

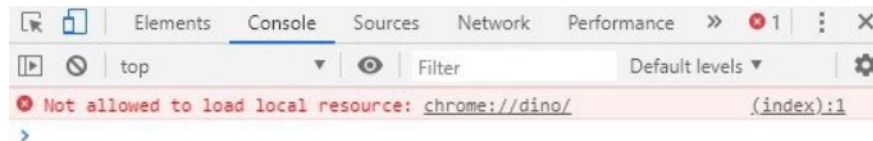

Every game is hacked and the T-rex mini game is no exception. You can use the cheat code to 'hack' this game to help your T-rex win the endless race in a very simple way.

Step 1: Open the pre-installed T-rex mini game on Chrome by disconnecting from the Internet or typing `chrome://dino` in the address bar and pressing Enter to open the No Internet page. Then start playing the game by pressing the Space Bar key.

Step 2: When the dinosaur starts running, right-click anywhere and select Inspect Element or press `Cntrl + Shift + I` to open the Inspect Element window.

Step 3: Select the Console tab.

To help your dinosaur become immortal, never Game over even when colliding with a cactus or a flying bird, copy the 2 code snippets below and paste them into the opened Console tab in step 3, then press Enter to activate.

Code 1:

```
var original = Runner.prototype.gameOver
```

Code 2:

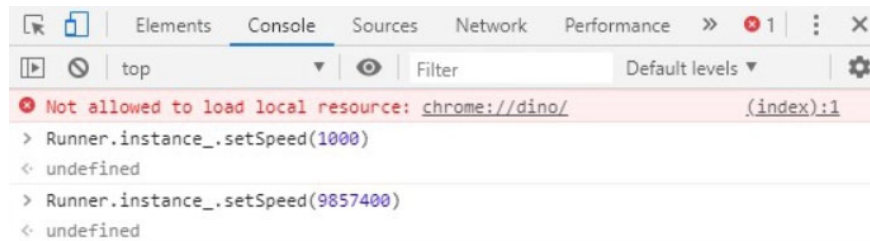

```
Runner.prototype.gameOver = function () {}
```

In order for your dinosaur to speed up as you like, copy the code below and paste it into the open Console tab in step 3, then press Enter to activate.

Code:

```
Runner.instance_.setSpeed(1000)
```

```
Elements Console Sources Network Performance >> 1 | : X
top Filter Default levels
Not allowed to load local resource: chrome://dino/ (index):1
> Runner.instance_.setSpeed(1000)
< undefined
> Runner.instance_.setSpeed(9857400)
< undefined
```

Note: The number in brackets is the speed of the dinosaur, you can change it freely.

To be able to play this mini game normally, you just need to turn off this Internet No page and open another page.

1. What if Chrome's dinosaur T-Rex automatically ran continuously for a year?
2. Google finally revealed the origin of the legendary T-rex when the computer lost its network connection

You finished reading the article "'Hack' the dinosaur game of Google Chrome to make your T-Rex immortal and max speed" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.