

How to add screen to Control Center on iPhone

If you have a lot of options on the Control Center iPhone, you can install the Duo tweak to add a second screen to manage.

Control Center on iPhone will be the place you quickly manage the settings on the system such as WiFi, Camera, Bluetooth connection, . On iOS 11, it has helped to change the settings that appear on the Cotrol Center. And if users add more settings to this interface, you can install Duo tweak to add another management screen to the Control Center.

Tweak Duo is currently suitable to install on jailbroken iOS 11 devices with Electra. After installing Duo tweak, we will have a few more options in the Control Center interface, as well as adding a new screen to manage.

Instructions for adding the iPhone Control Center screen

Step 1:

Currently, Packix Duo tweaks will cost 1 USD. To try it, go to Cydia and click on the Source icon . Click Edit or Add and then enter <http://repo.hackyouriphone.org/> . Click Add sources to add the source.

Then go to Search tab to search Duo tweak and install on device. Finish installing press Restart Springboard .

Step 2:

Go to Settings then click on Duo tweak to proceed with the configuration. Activate the horizontal bar at Enable Tweak so that Duo works. Click on Customize Modules to select more system customizations.

At the list click on the settings that want to appear on the 2nd page of the Control Center. After selecting, press Respring in the upper right corner.

When you return to the Control Center interface, we will see those options appear.

Now you open the Control Center interface and then swipe the screen to the right will appear the second management interface. So we will have to add more custom system on the Control Center for iPhone, without encapsulating in 1 interface as before.
