

How to prevent Microsoft Edge from opening new tabs

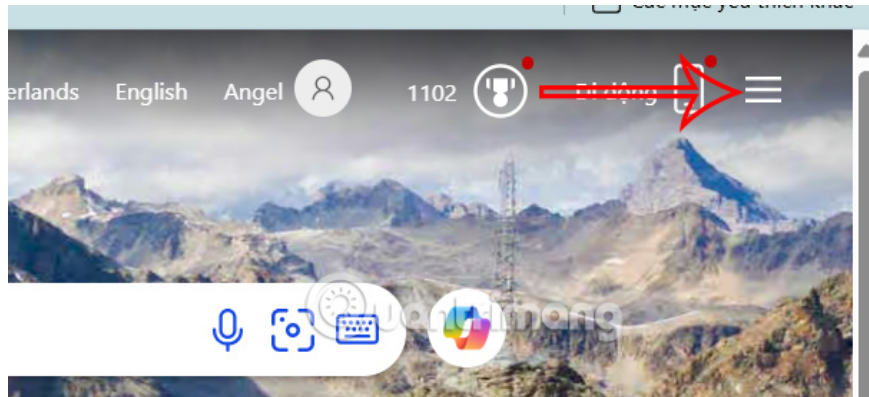

Microsoft Edge can sometimes open too many new tabs, which can be annoying. In this guide, you'll learn how to stop Edge from automatically opening tabs.

Microsoft Edge can sometimes open too many new tabs when you click on links in Bing search results, MSN news feeds, or the address/search bar. This can lead to too many tabs opening, which can be annoying and clutter your browsing experience. In this guide, you'll learn how to stop Edge from automatically opening tabs.

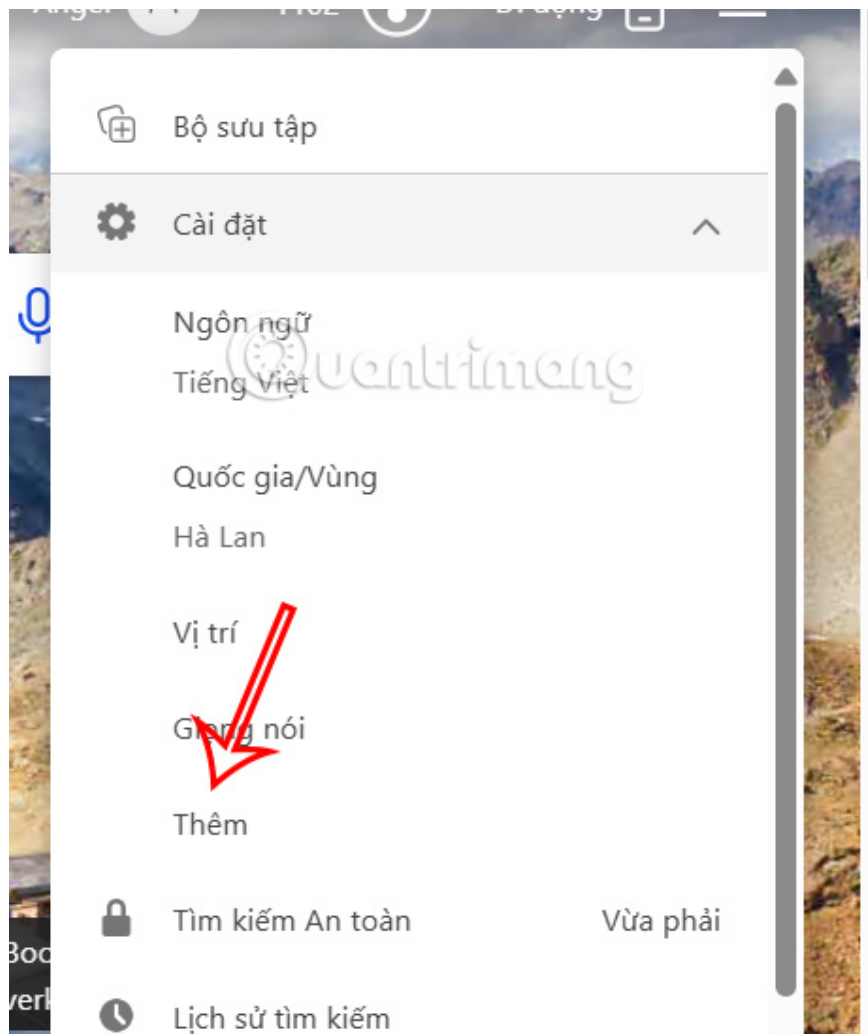

How to stop Microsoft Edge from opening new tabs

Step 1:

In Edge browser, you access Bing website, then in Bing interface, you click on 3 dashes icon .

Display the menu, click Settings to expand and then click More in the list displayed below.

Step 2:

Switch to the Bing settings interface, scroll down to the Results section and you will see 2 default settings enabled as shown below.

You will need to turn off Open links from search results in new tab or window and turn off Open links from news results in new tab or window and then press Save below to save your settings.

If you delete your cookies, you will need to make these changes again.

Bạn sẽ cần phải thực hiện lại những thay đổi này nếu xóa cookie.

- Mở liên kết từ kết quả tìm kiếm trong một tab hoặc cửa sổ mới
- Mở liên kết từ kết quả tin tức trong một tab hoặc cửa sổ mới

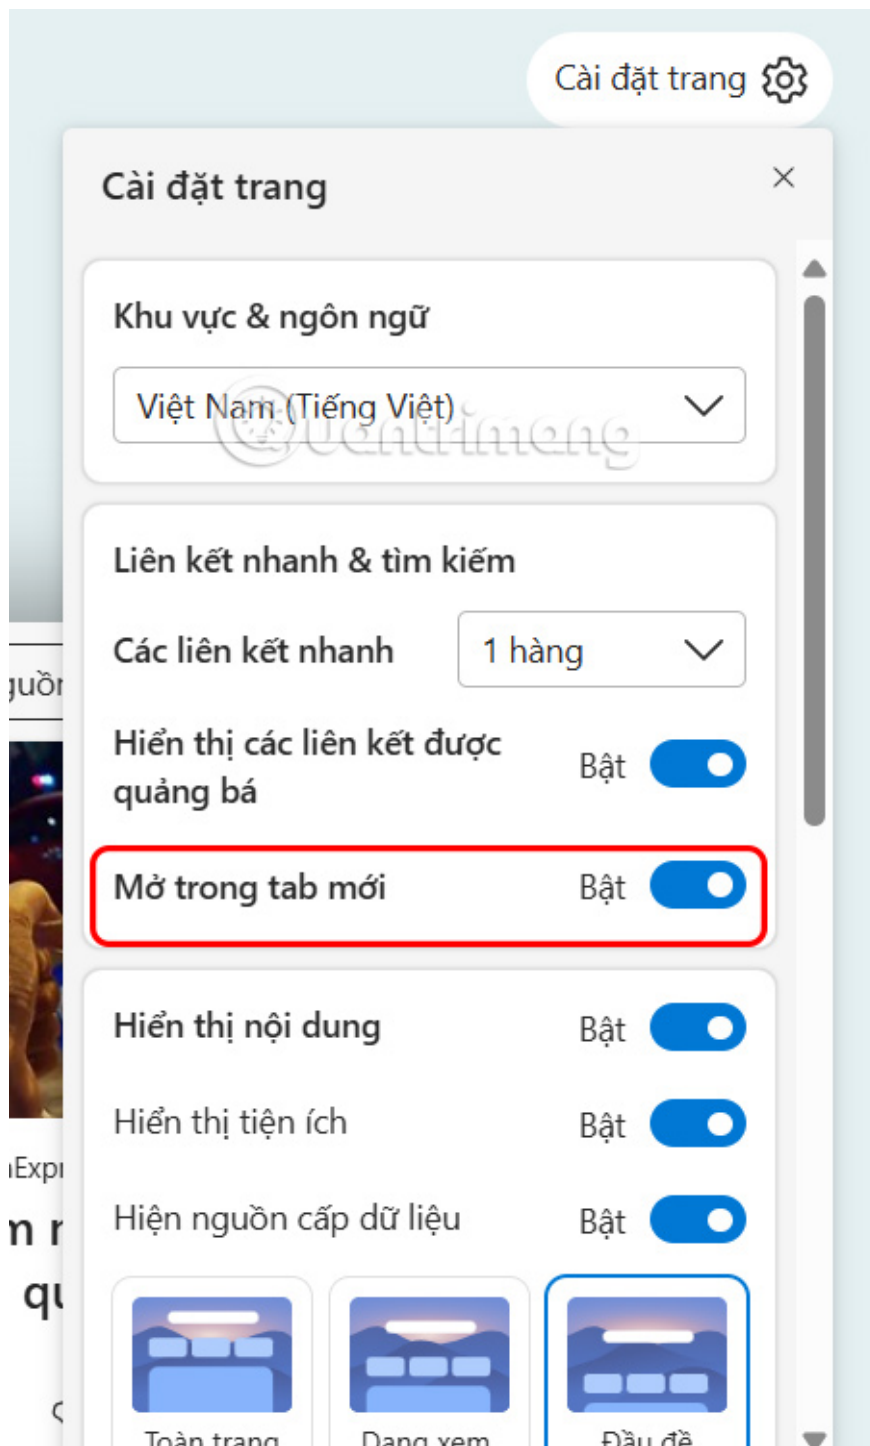

When you click on a Bing search result, it opens in the same tab instead of opening a new tab.

How to stop MSN from opening new tabs in Edge

By default, a new tab in Edge loads the MSN news feed, which can lead to more tabs opening when you click on a headline. If you don't want to see MSN anymore, you can change the new tab page in Edge to Google or any other website.

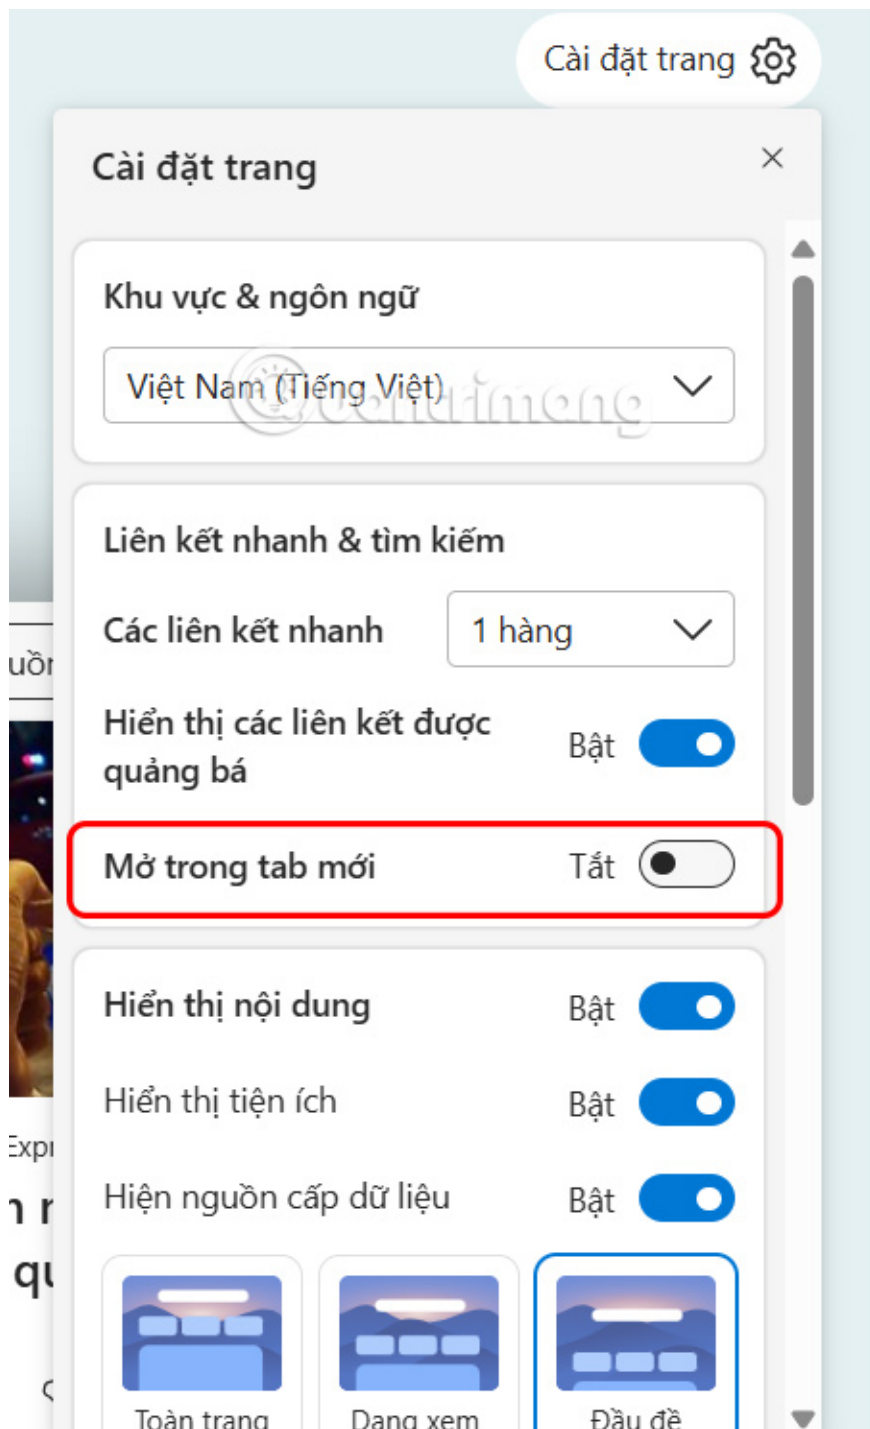

Step 1:

You open a new tab on the browser to display the MSN feed, then you click on the gear icon in the right corner as shown. Show the new settings below and you will see the default Open in new tab enabled .

Step 2:

You will need to turn off Open in new tab to reduce the number of unwanted tabs when browsing from MSN feeds.

Opening a new tab for every search result or link in Edge can be annoying when browsing the web. By adjusting Bing settings and MSN new tab behavior, you can organize your tabs in a logical way and avoid unnecessary clutter.

Video tutorial on how to turn off automatic opening of new tab links on Edge

You finished reading the article "How to prevent Microsoft Edge from opening new tabs" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
