

How to Change Your Credit Card Number for Windows Store Purchases

Did your credit card number change since the first time you set it when purchasing an app in the Windows Store? Well, this article can help guide you to make things straight again. Right-click anywhere on the screen where an image or text...

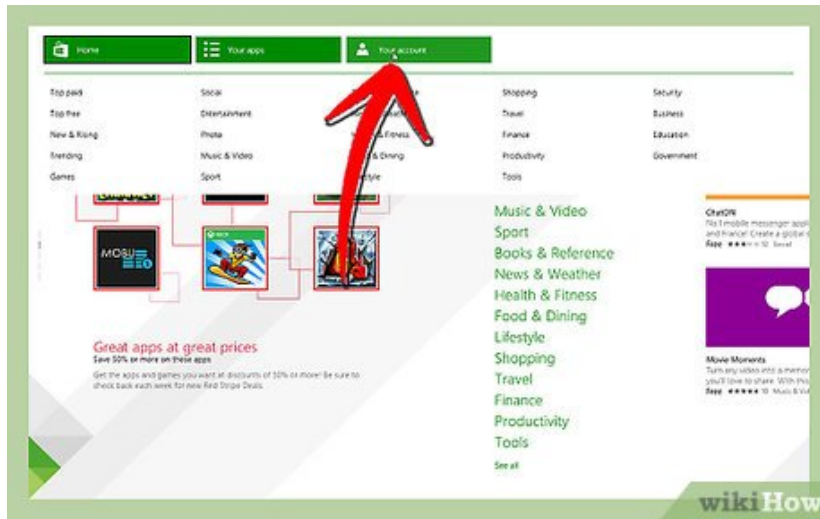

Method 1 of 2:

From the Windows Store App

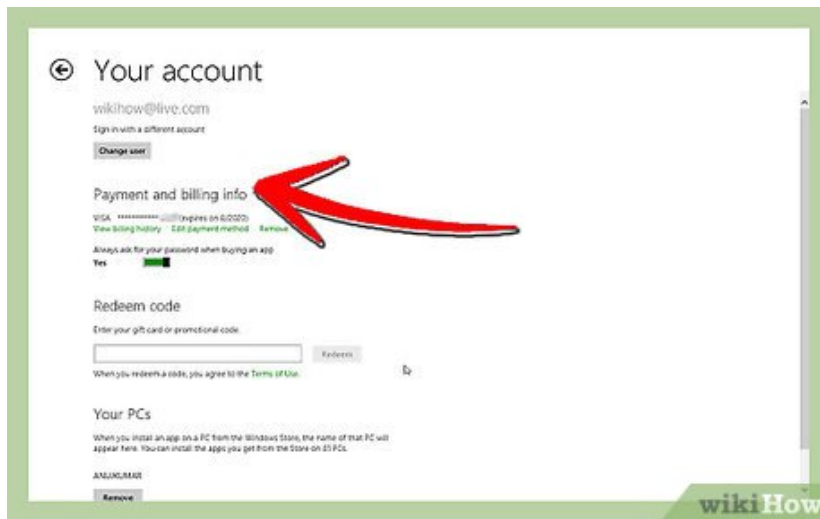

Right-click anywhere on the screen where an image or text hasn't been placed. (You can also use a keyboard shortcut, which is ? Win + Z.)

2.

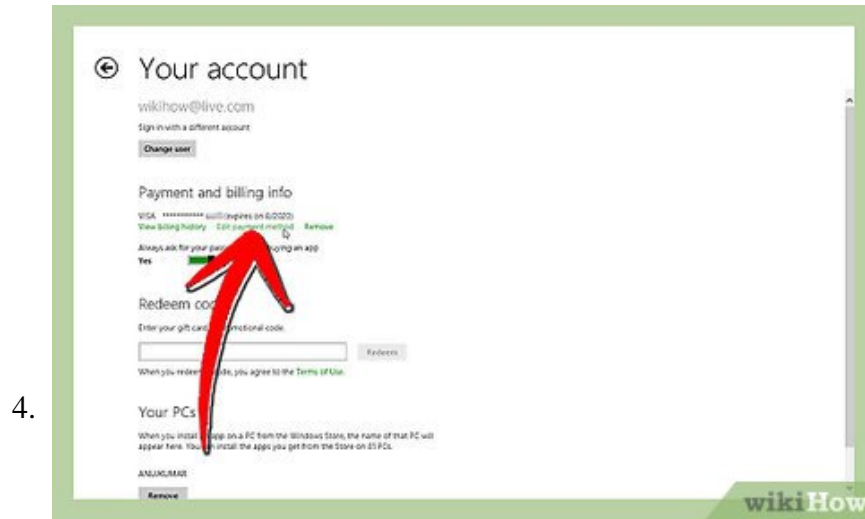

Look for and click the "Your Account" button, which should be at the very top of the screen.

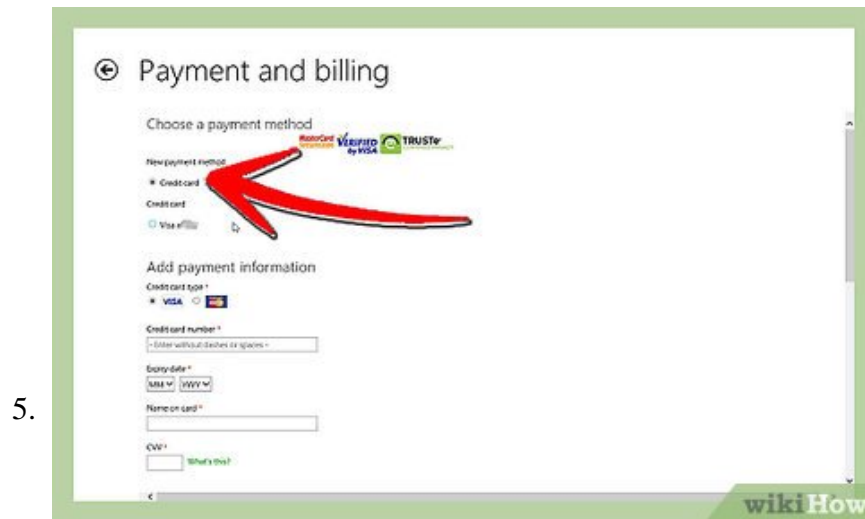

3.

Look for the section that contains your payment details. It should be labelled "Payment and billing info" and shouldn't need any scrolling to find.

Click the "Edit payment method" link under the credit card's card number that is displayed.

Create a brand new credit card account line. Select the "Credit card" option at the top of the list of things to change it to.

Click the "Submit" button at the bottom of the screen to go through with the change of credit card numbers.

Method 2 of 2:

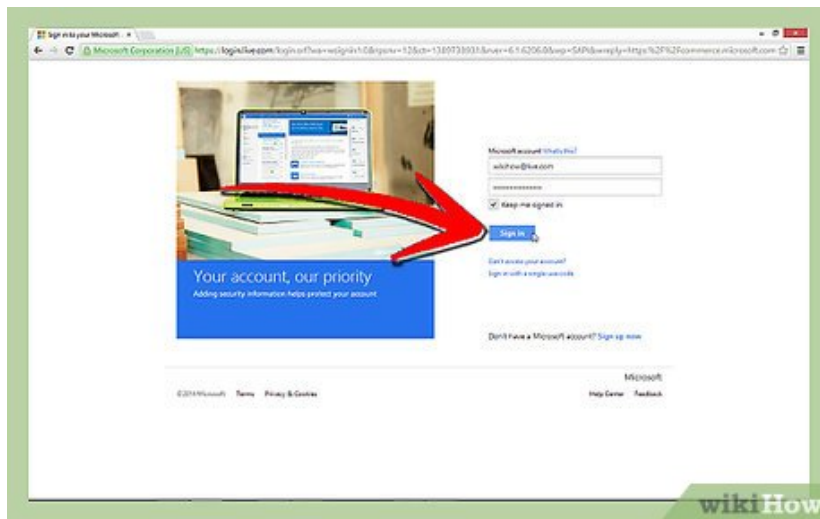

From the Microsoft Account: Commerce Website

1.

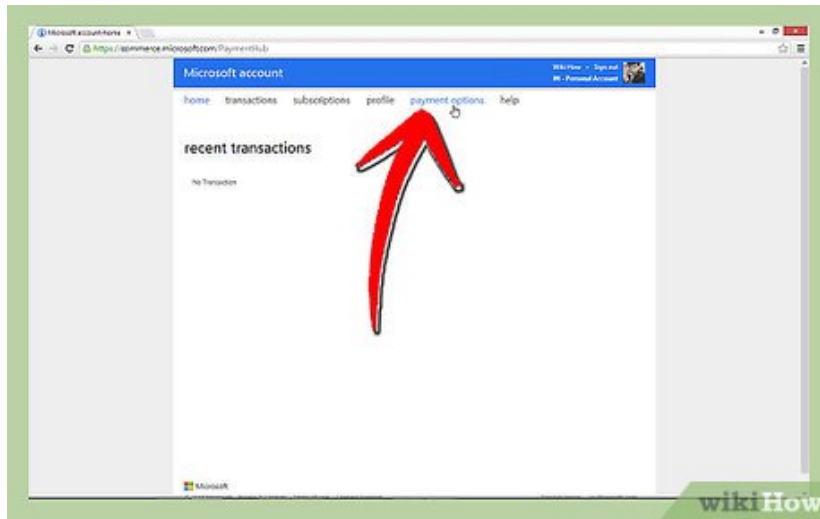

Visit the Microsoft Commerce website.

2.

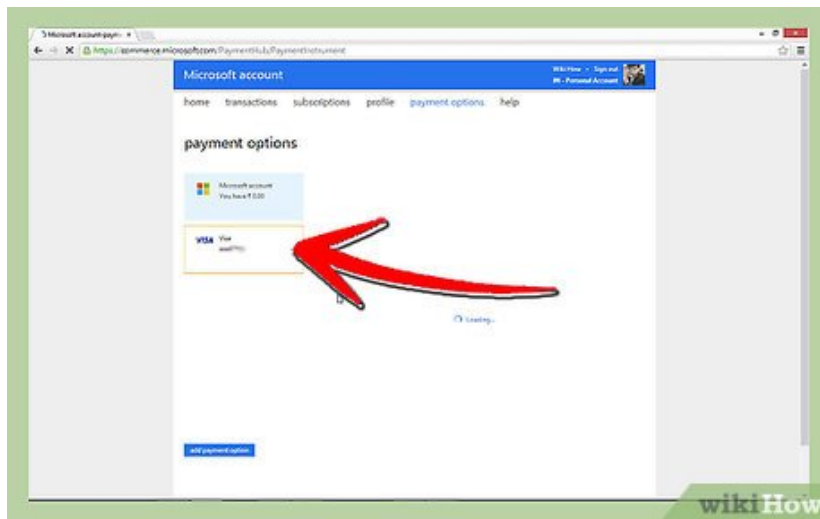

Sign into your Microsoft Account with your Microsoft Account credentials that has the wrongly-entered card number/billing details.

3.

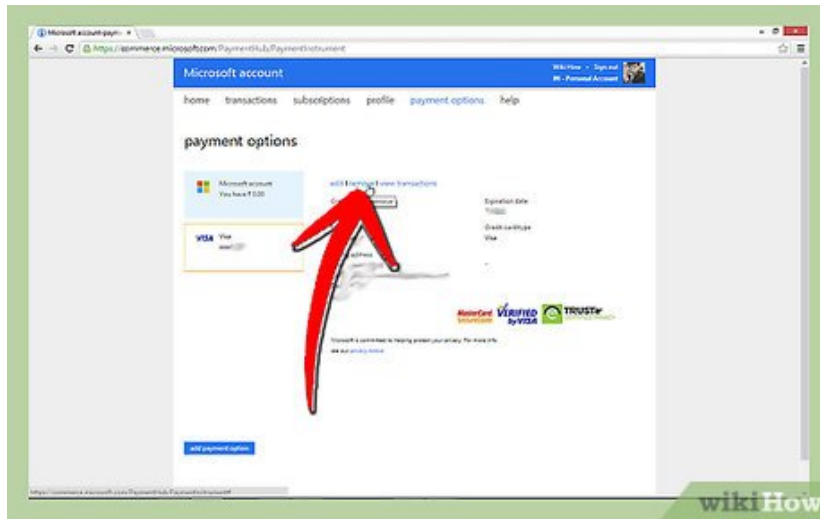

Look for the "Payment options" link from the tabs at the top of the page, and click it.

4.

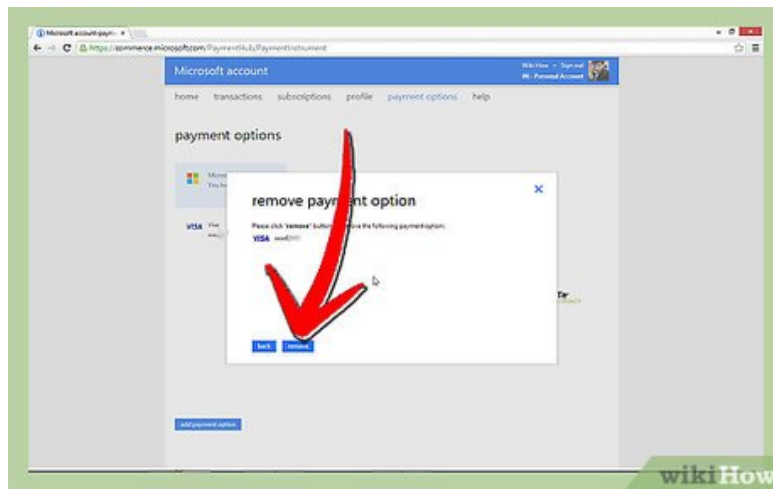

Look for and click the button/tab to the credit card you'd like to change. You'll find these tabs over on the left side of the page.

5.

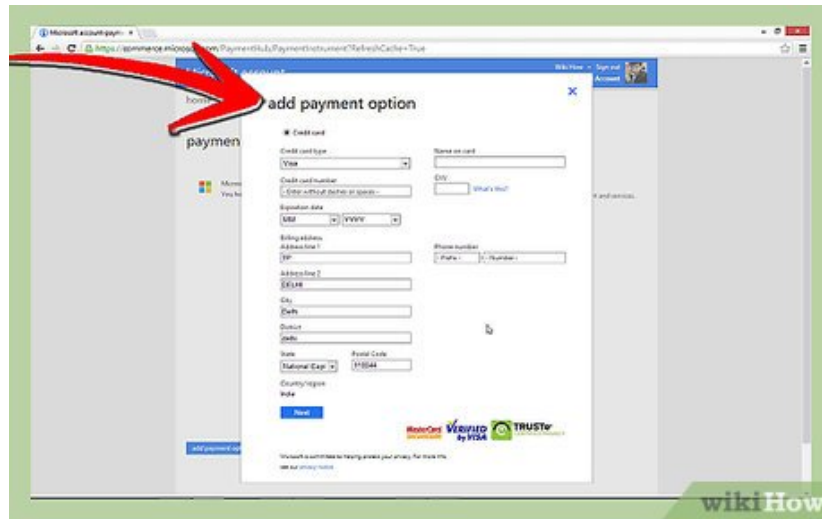

Click the "remove" button to remove the card from your account, if the card number itself is incorrect.

1. You can still get away with editing all the other details of your credit card(such as the expiration date or other billing details of the card, without removing, and instead click the "edit" button.

Set up a brand new billing credit card from the billing options area on the Windows Store. As of right now, the Microsoft Account Commerce website, doesn't have an accurate way to add a new credit card to your account without going through the Windows 8 Store.
