Memoji is a new transformation of Animoji

As mentioned above, "Apple House" released Animoji last year with iPhone X, so this 3D icon set is only used with this high-end phone camera. Last Monday, Apple added some new animations to iOS 12, including a ghost and a koala to give users a lot of new experiences.

But Memoji is really based on the user's face, because there are many customizations like your version in real life or your preferences.

Note:

If you haven't upgraded your device to iOS 12 beta, you won't be able to try Memoji, download the iOS 12 beta update to try it out, the official version will be released soon. After upgrading, you can use the Memoji feature according to the instructions below.

How to send Memoji via message

To create Memoji on iOS 12, select the application icon on the left hand side of the text entry section of the Message . At this point, you will see the Animoji icon, click on it and select the icon at the bottom of the screen. Continue, swipe left until you see the "+" sign, then click to start using this Memoji.

By default, Memoji will start with a basic face like the one below.

Memoji offers a few skin and eye suggestions for you to delight in designing your Memoji character, you can even add freckles more or less if you want.

You can also customize the hair color, hair style, skin color, and accessories such as glasses or earrings for your avatar. Once you've finished editing the Memoji, drag it to the Animoji menu to save it and use it at any time.

From now on, use Memoji to replace your face, then send new Memoji as a regular message, or you can integrate it as a fun sticker every time you take a selfie.

Use Memoji for FaceTime

You can also use MeMoji to represent yourself in the FaceTime group call - a new feature in iOS 12. Apple has also improved FaceTime video call functionality on iOS 12, allowing video calls in groups with up to 32 people at the same time.

It's interesting, isn't it? Exchange your Memoji iOS 12 images with friends while chatting or sharing on Facebook for everyone to know.
