

How to customize the Home interface on Threads

The Home interface on Threads will recommend posts from different Threads accounts, with lots of content for you to explore including Threads accounts you don't follow.

However, there are a lot of posts that don't suit you or don't like posts from that account. If so, you can adjust the Home interface on Threads according to the information needs you are interested in. Here is a guide to tweaking the Home interface on Threads.

Instructions to adjust the Home interface on Threads

Step 1:

At the Home interface on the Threads application, we view the posts as usual. When you click on the 3-dot icon in the right corner of the post, the options will be displayed.

1. Turn off: this and remove their post from your Home interface.
2. Hide: When you use this option, this Threads account will be hidden from your Home interface and your posts will not be visible on their Home interface either.
3. Block: Using this option will block the Threads account. Their posts won't show up in the Home interface, and they won't be able to see your Threads account information.
4. Report: This option will report the user when you see a problem account.

You click on one of the options above to remove the posts or accounts you don't care about.

Step 2:

For the posts that you like , we click on the heart to like the post. Threads will be based on your interests, thereby displaying more posts with similar content.

Step 3:

For Threads accounts that you unfollow, just click on the avatar to unfollow on Threads.

After you adjust, Threads will prioritize showing the posts we like, helping you get the Home interface as you like.
