

How to determine if a Dell or Lenovo PC is compatible with Windows 10 May 2020 Update

How to know if your device is compatible with Windows 10 2004?

Are you trying to get the latest Windows 10 May 2020 update (Windows 10 2004, 20H1)? Want to know if your PC likes the update? Don't worry if you're using a PC from the brands Dell and Lenovo. These two PC makers are among the first OEMs in the world to give the latest Windows 10 2004-certified devices for users to consult and make a decision to update the system. when needed.

Is your device compatible with Windows 10 2004?

Last month, Microsoft officially released Windows 10 2004, a long-awaited major feature update in 2020. However, just like the 'traditional' of Windows, this update is not compatible with all Windows 10 devices, at least for the time being, because of some platform problems. Therefore, from a user perspective, the psychology before deciding whether to upgrade your PC to the new version or continue to wait until Microsoft resolves all the problems is impossible. avoid.

Windows 10 2004

Instead of sitting on guesswork, it's better to find out if your device is compatible before deciding to install the update. Many people have complained that their Windows 10 devices can't run the new update, possibly due to certain compatibility issues related to drivers or some other cause.

For Lenovo PC owners, try to visit the manufacturer's support page, you will come across a convenient tool that allows users to enter the product serial number and retrieve information to see whether the device is compatible with Windows 10 2004 or not? In addition, users can also look up with your Lenovo account login information.

Here is a list of Lenovo PC lines that have been tested to be compatible with Windows 10 2004:

1. ThinkPad notebook
2. Lenovo / Ideapad laptops
3. ThinkCentre & AIO
4. IdeaCentre & AIO
5. ThinkStation

In addition, Lenovo has been very careful when displaying both notes specific to each product category, highlighting the problems noted for certain devices.

Dell also offers similar support to help users stay informed about devices that are compatible with the Windows 10 2004 update. About the list of Dell PCs that have been tested to be compatible with the new Windows update You can refer to the company's support page at this address.

You finished reading the article "How to determine if a Dell or Lenovo PC is compatible with Windows 10 May 2020 Update" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.