How to disable Find iPhone remotely

1. Disable Find iPhone on iCloud.com

Step 1: The first way to disable Find iPhone is that you can access the iCloud website in any browser on any device. Then go to the iCloud.com link on the search bar. Next, log in to your iCloud account.

Step 2: After that, the device that is logged in to the iCloud account will display a message that requires a login with an Apple ID, click Allow and you will receive a 6-digit verification code.

Enter the 6-digit authentication code in the iCloud login page. If you don't see the verification code, you can click You have not received the verification code for the system to resend.

Next, there will be a message that the browser will show up, if you feel confident about the browser, click on Trust to not need to enter the confirmation code the next time you log in.

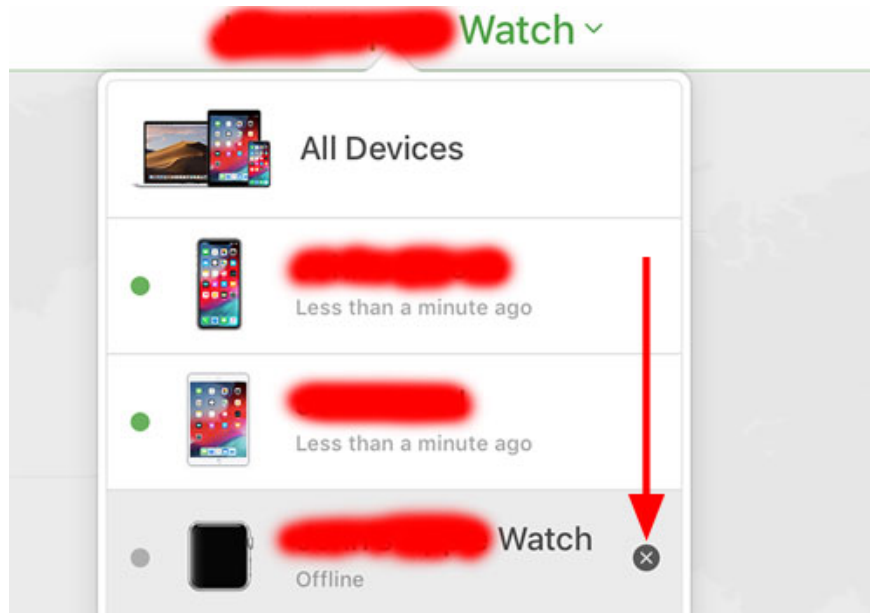

Once logged into iCloud, you will see familiar icons on iPhone and iPad. Click Find iPhone.

Next is to login to your iCloud account, enter your password and click Login .

In the list of devices you will see that the device is green and has a black device, black devices are powered off, want to disable Find iPhone on that device, please click on the x to do Delete device from the list. Then click Uninstall in the next table.

2. Turn off Find iPhone on the phone

If you are using another Apple device like iPhone or iPad, you can use the Find iPhone app available on your other device. Below I will take the example of an iPhone.

Step 1: Open the Find iPhone app and log in to your iCloud account, like how to disable iPhone with iCloud.com above.
