

How to display animations when searching on Google

When chatting or using social networks that want to convey your thoughts or emotions in a more lively and fun way, we often ask for animation (Gif) and the fastest way is to get on Google Image.

When chatting or using social networks that want to convey your thoughts or emotions in a more lively and fun way, we will often "ask" for animation (Gif) and the fastest way is to get on Google Image.

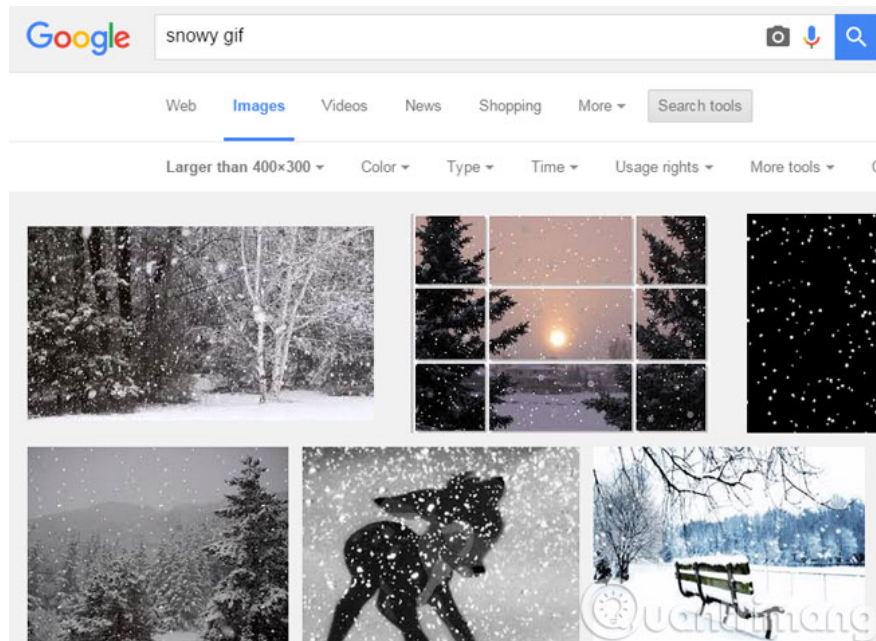

But the problem is that Google does not have any GIF images in the results page displaying the animation until you click to enlarge them. This will make searching for GIFs time consuming and boring.

So, a pretty useful Chrome browser extension called GoogleGIFs will display animations right in the search results page, so you won't need too many clicks.

First, you need to download this utility for Chrome

Then, open the Google image search page and type in the keyword search term + Gif

Immediately, Google will display the right animation according to the theme you are looking for, you will not lose clicking on each one to see more.

1. Instructions for creating GIF images with Imgur.com
2. Tutorial for creating animations in Photoshop CS6
3. How to make photos on PhotoScape?

Have a nice weekend!

You finished reading the article "How to display animations when searching on Google" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.