

How to Download a GitHub Folder

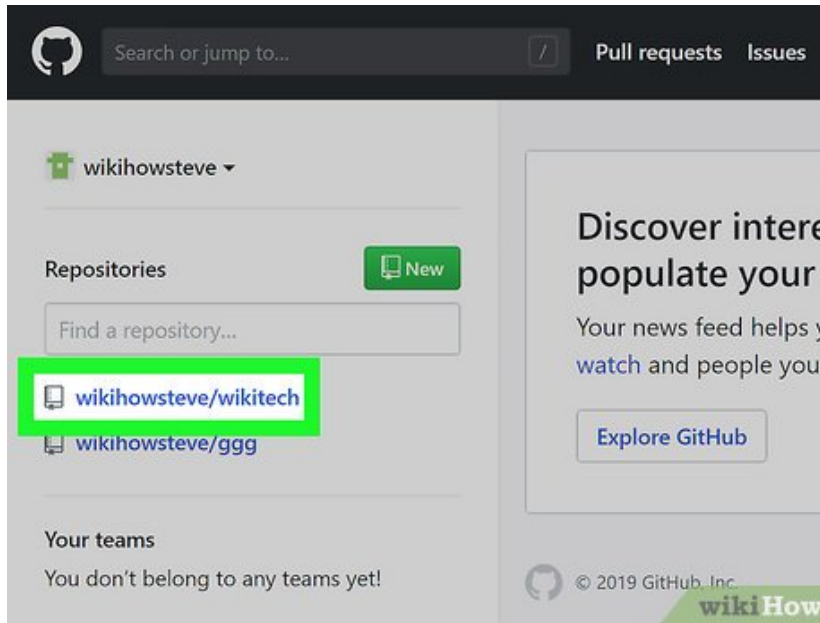

This wikiHow teaches you how to download a GitHub folder by downloading an entire repository. GitHub allows you to download a repo locally to your computer with just a few simple steps. Please note that downloading a specific folder from...

Method 1 of 2:

Downloading a Repo From GitHub on the Web

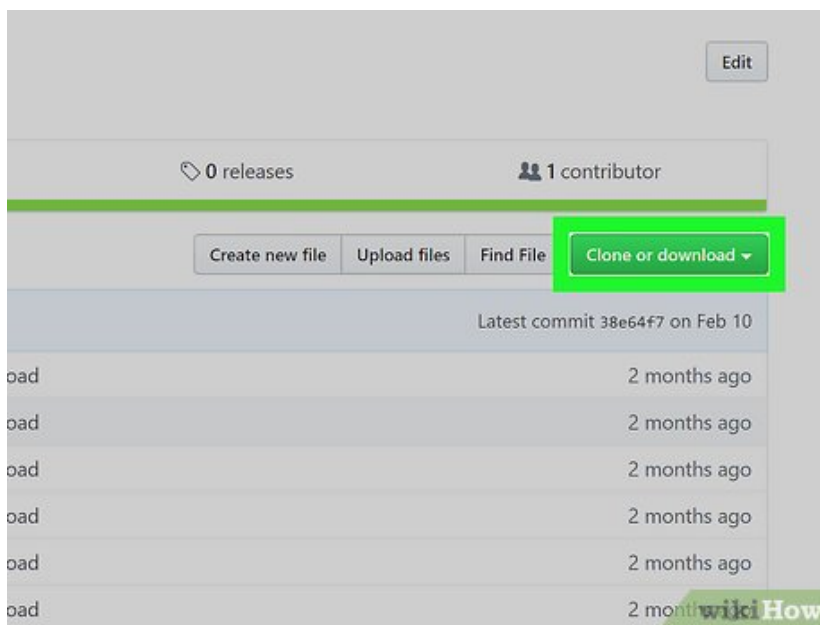

Navigate to GitHub. You can also type `http://www.github.com` into your browser's address bar.

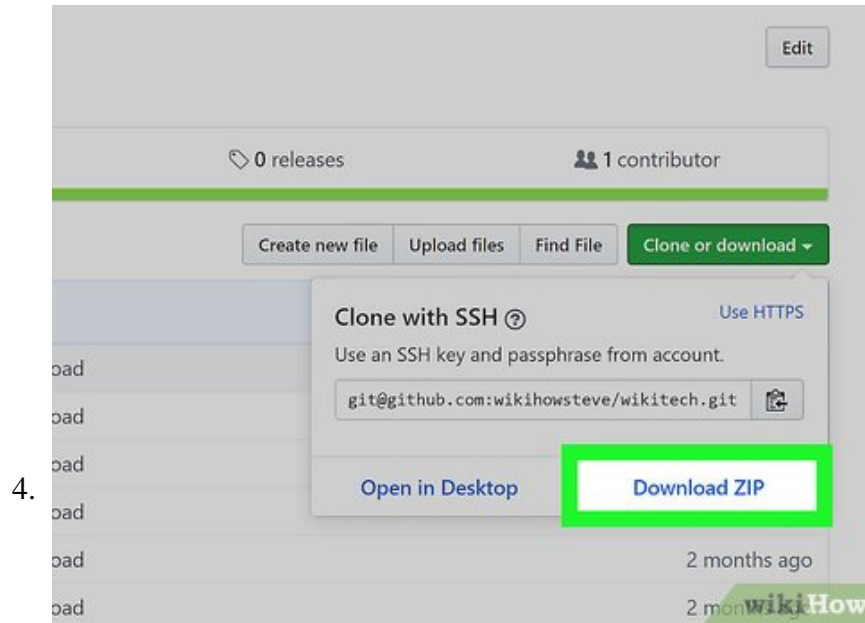

2.

Navigate to the repo you want to download or clone.

3.

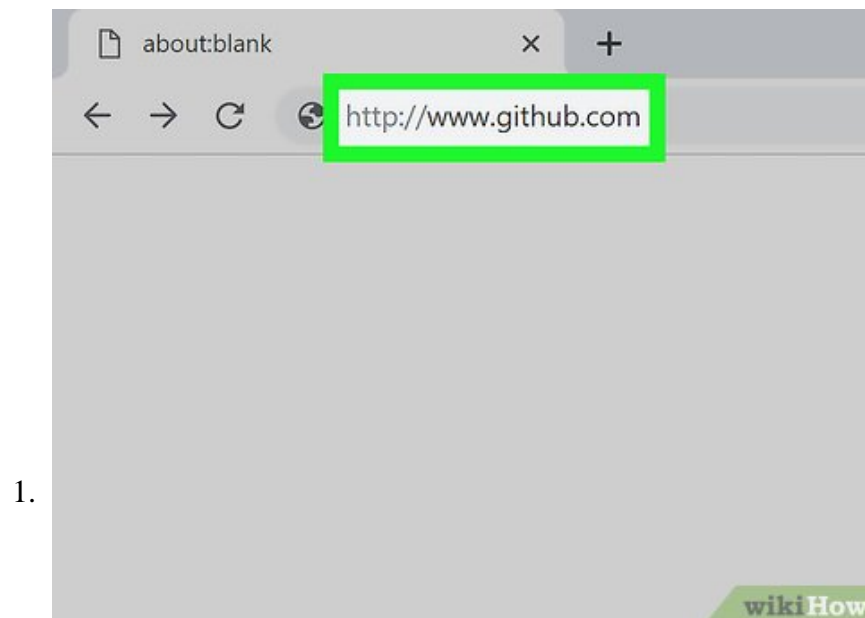

Click the green Clone or Download button on the right.

Click the Download ZIP button. This will download the repo to your computer as a .Zip file.

Method 2 of 2:

Downloading a Repo in GitHub Desktop

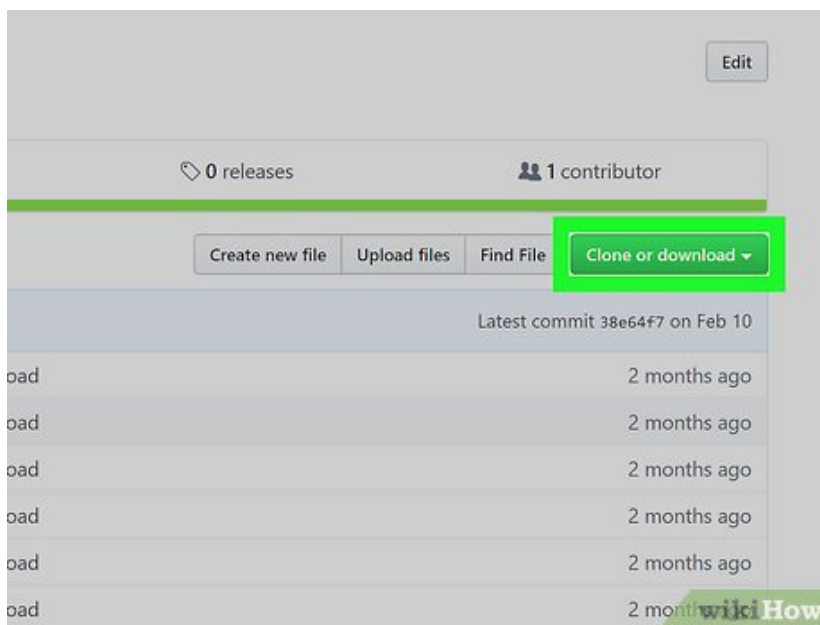

Navigate to GitHub. You can also type `http://www.github.com` into your browser's address bar.

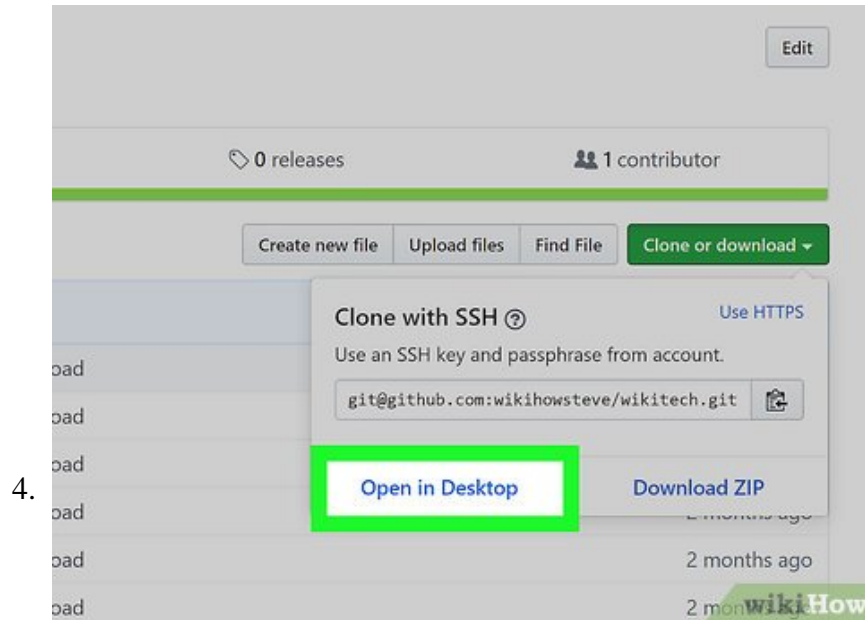

2.

Navigate to the repo you want to download or clone.

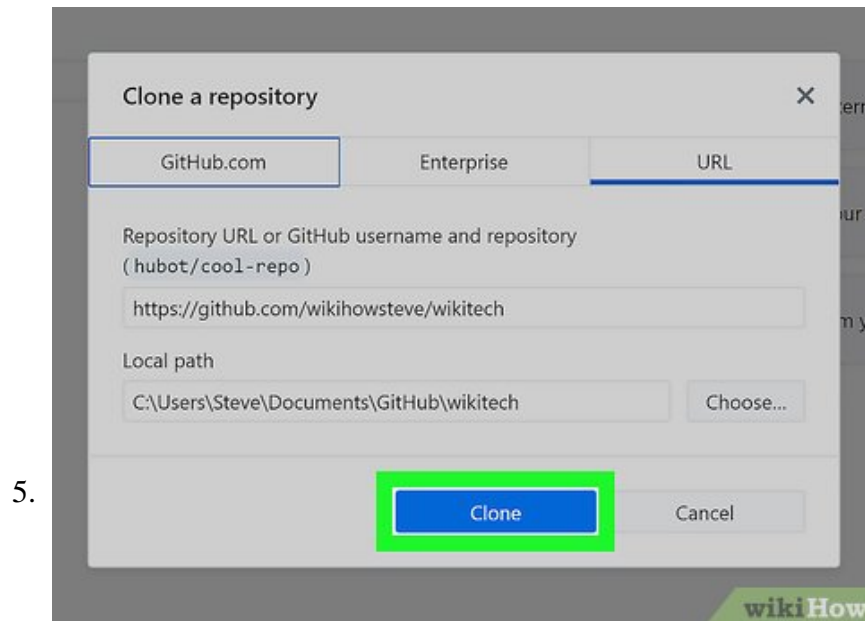

3.

Click the green Clone or Download button on the right.

Click the Open in Desktop button. This will open the GitHub Desktop app.

1. If it is your first time opening a file in GitHub Desktop from your browser, you might be asked to grant permission to your computer to open the file in GitHub Desktop.

Click the blue Clone button in GitHub Desktop. This will begin the download of the repo to your computer.

6.

Click the Show In Finder button to open the repo in Finder.

You finished reading the article "How to Download a GitHub Folder" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
