On Windows 10, you can use the text suggestion feature (text suggestion), it will display the text you intend to type next, saving time and typing faster. But this feature is also annoying for users if using many different languages.

Fortunately, you can fully enable or disable this text suggestion feature easily from the software and hardware keyboard.

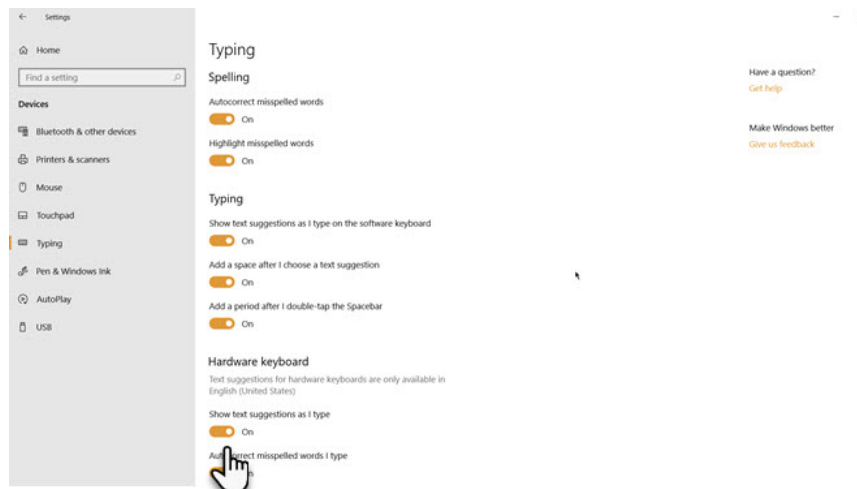

How to enable or disable the text suggestion feature on Windows 10

Text suggestions are a useful feature for people who misspelled. It works on all Windows 10 applications and Edge browsers.

Step 1 . Open Windows 10 Settings .

Step 2 . Click Devices> Typing .

Step 3 . Go to the Hardware keyboard section, turn on the Show text suggestions as I type option .

Step 4 . You can choose to enable the Autocorrect misspelled words I type option on the hardware keyboard and other options like Add a space after I choose a text suggestion .

Step 5 . To turn on text suggestions on the software keyboard , turn on Show text suggestions as I type option on the software keyboard .

The text suggestion feature now supports only English (US) keyboards. To check, you can go to Settings> Time & Languages> Region & languages .

You can learn about the different keyboard options in Windows 10. For example, the Windows 10 touch keyboard (different from the virtual keyboard) has cute emoticons, which help you express your emotions in online chat.

I wish you all success!
