

How to fix black screen error after updating Windows 10

To learn how to fix black screen error after updating Windows 10, read along to refer to the below article of TipsMake to find out details.

According to some users, after updating to new versions of Windows 10 they encountered a black screen of death. There are many ways to fix black screen error after updating Windows 10.

The cause of the black screen of death error after updating Windows 10 can be because Windows Update has not completed the update process and is causing the error. During the update, the system will reboot as part of the process.

After the reboot process is complete, Windows 10 computer displays a black screen, you follow the steps

Step 1: Press the key combination Ctrl + Alt + Del

Step 2: Select Restart to restart the computer.

According to Microsoft, this way will help fix the black screen error after updating Windows 10.

In the event that the above method does not work, does not help fix the black screen of death after updating Windows 10, here are some other fixes that you can refer to:

Method 1: Press the Windows + Ctrl + Shift + B key combination to restart the computer graphics card driver. This may help fix a number of problems, including the black screen error.

Method 2: Force shut down the computer, just press and hold the physical Power button until the computer is completely off. Wait a few seconds, then turn on the computer again and go back to normal use.

Method 3: Make sure the mouse and keyboard are connected to the computer properly. Also, if you are using a laptop, make sure the device has battery remaining. For a computer, make sure the power cord is properly connected and connected to a power source.

Good luck.

You finished reading the article "How to fix black screen error after updating Windows 10" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.