How to make paper roses

Step 1:

Place the paper in a horizontal direction so that when you cut the paper to make the rose, the shrunk paper has the elasticity that makes it easy to shape the flower and the petals also look softer.

Cut shrug paper into small pieces about 20cm long, about 8cm wide.

Then, following the length of the shrug paper, fold a small edge about 1.5cm and twist the edge of the paper, continue to fold and twist it until the length of the paper strip is gone. Estimate the distance between the twisted knobs equally so that the rose looks real wing.

Step 2:

After you have reached the end of the paper strip, tighten the last edge of the paper so that the paper does not open. You can use candle glue to fix the paper.

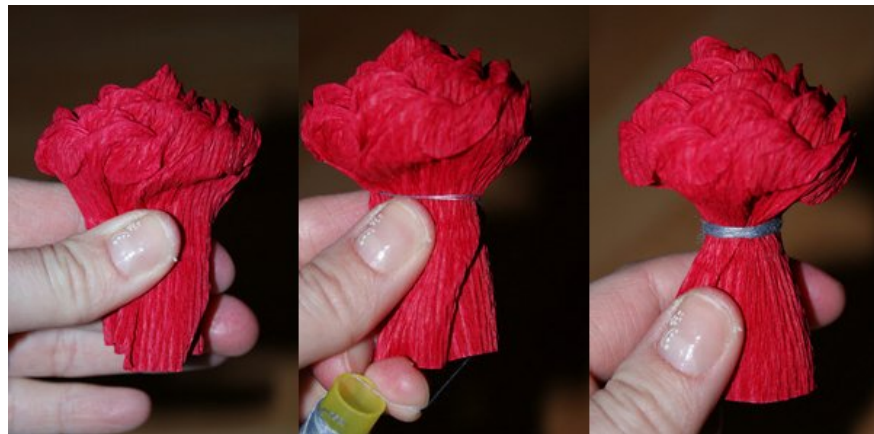

Step 3:

From the twisted twist button, start rolling the strip of paper in a circle so that the twisted edges are arranged side by side to form the wings of the rose.

This stage should wrap your hands tightly so that your roses look better. Because the shrunk paper has a certain elasticity, you can rest assured that even though the roll is tight, the flower looks soft.

Step 4:

After having rolled out the strip of paper to form a rose, hold it tightly and use the thread or string to wrap it around the body and tie it tightly so that the flower does not burst.

Step 5:

Then, you align the rose petals for a real distance evenly, bending the petals so that the paper relaxes, the flower looks more natural.

Step 6:

You use a pen, draw a leaf shape on the paper, and turn it green and then cut it along the line.

Using small steel fibers to make branches, you attach leaves and flowers to steel fibers. If you bundle the flowers into a big bundle, revealing the branches of flowers, tie the blue ribbon or stick the blue paper around the steel thread. If you attach flowers to the basket, the branches will be covered by the flowers, so there is no need to perform this stage.

Depending on the length of the corrugated paper you cut, you will be able to make roses of different sizes. You can be flexible in this stage to create diverse bouquets of flowers with prawns, flowers blooming.

You can use rose milk attached to roses in the heart box, spray a little more perfume to have a sweet aroma. Surely this will be a meaningful present for your girlfriend on the upcoming Vietnamese Women's Day October 20 .
