With Season 3 of Call of Duty: Warzone 2 comes an upgrade table feature so you can finally customize your gun items.

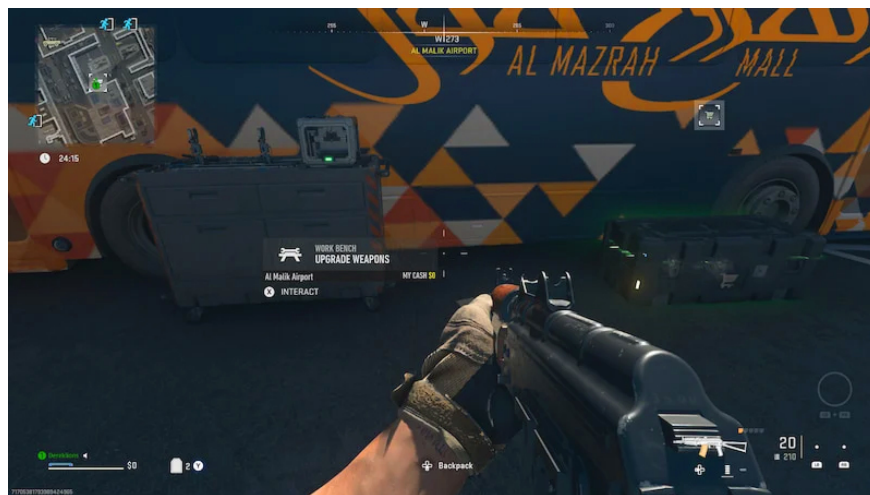

Previously, it was impossible to modify weapons called DMZ contraband, but Season 3 of Call of Duty: Warzone 2 added an upgrade table feature so you can finally customize your gun items. Here's everything you need to know about DMZ's new upgrade desk feature.

Season 3 of DMZ adds upgrade tables to the map and new locations that can be found near purchasing stations. The upgrade desk is not shown on the map, but just go to the nearest Buy Station marked on your map and the upgrade desk will be nearby, you will see it as a black tool chest with wheel.

Upgrade table in COD Warzone DMZ

The upgrade table works similarly to the Gunsmith feature. You can choose to modify any currently equipped weapon, then add or remove attachments to get the item you want. Of course, if you can mod, you can mod, but there will be some limitations here.

First, you'll want to make sure you've saved up some money or some loot to sell, because you'll need to pay for each accessory added to your gun. . Luckily, Buy Station will be nearby to help you sell all your valuables.

The upgraded desk allows you to purchase $3,000 for each accessory included. Just like battle royale and multiplayer modes, you can only equip a maximum of five accessories. The total amount you will need to spend will be $15,000 if you want to completely upgrade a gun with five optional accessories.

The upgrade table will give you all the weapon attachments you've unlocked in the game, and any attachments you haven't unlocked will still be shown as locked and unavailable here.

Most weapons you get in the DMZ will have at least one or two attachments, but don't worry, removing the attachments at the upgrade table won't cost anything. Just make sure you definitely don't want that accessory because you can't get it back.

This will help you with everything you need to know to customize your weapons in the DMZ.
