The game of raising CryptoKitties cats is storming these days. This is a CryptoKitties game, a virtual cat game based on the blockchain technology that people are talking about.

What is CryptoKitties?

CryptoKitties is a virtual cat game, the player's task is to breed cats called CryptoKitties and then trade and trade with virtual money. These cats are unique and 100% owned by you.

These cats have different characteristics and have rare traits that make them different from the rest. Most users try to breed or collect rare cats because they are very expensive. A rare special cat has just been sold for more than a hundred thousand dollars. In fact, the total sales of cats sold so far are about 3 million dollars, which is quite impressive for a game just released last week.

Note, this game requires using virtual currency Ether (currency of Ethereum) to play, this virtual currency can be converted into real money. It is similar to a pyramid structure, meaning that the first people can buy rare cats for less than the following players.

Buy an Ether virtual currency when starting the game

To start playing, players need to buy Ether virtual currency and place it in an electronic wallet called MetaMask. MetaMask is one of the simplest types of e-wallets because it works as a Chrome browser extension, so it's easy to interact with many applications on the Ethereum blockchain, including CryptoKitties.

Once an Ether virtual currency was purchased, MetaMask installed and an electronic wallet was created, the player needed to transfer an Ether virtual deposit to the wallet (before sending ETH, try making a transaction with a small Ether amount. like 0.0001 ETH to check if everything works well. When in the MetaMask wallet there is ETH money (should start with at least 0.1 ETH, equivalent to about $ 47), players only need to visit the CryptoKitties.co website to create an account. Now that MetaMask has been unlocked and connected to the Ethereum main network, players will start buying, selling and breeding cats on the CryptoKitties website.

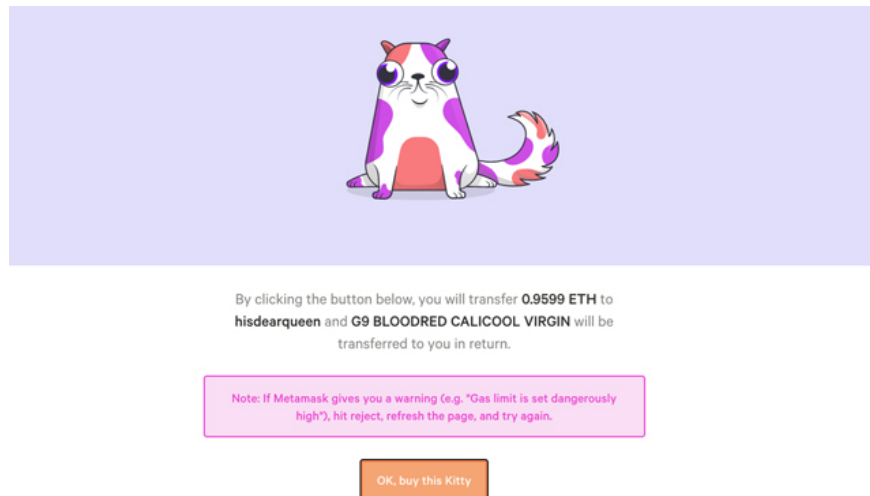

Note: when making any transaction on the Ethereum network such as buying, selling and multiplying cats, players need to have enough ETH virtual money to pay the fees associated with that transaction, but also need more ETH to complete the transaction.

Buy a few cats

Now MetaMask is working, completing the account creation and having an ETH number in the virtual wallet, it's time to buy a cat. But why do you need to do that?

For a new person, they may be bored when they start playing CryptoKitties. Because they don't really caress cats, don't feed them like Tamagotchi, do nothing but buy, sell them or rent them.

But the game becomes interesting as players begin to find rare features and how to create them. For example, there are thousands of cats in the game, but according to CryptoKittydex's cat tracking site, there are only 81 "mainecoon" and 56 cats "jaguar" cats. With rare characteristics, a cat can sell for hundreds of ETH, sometimes up to millions of dollars. If breeding creates two popular cats and a rare one, you can actually sell it with a lot of money.

However, to start, the only thing the player needs to do is buy a cat or two children if possible. To buy cats, go to MarketPlace, find a favorite cat, then click " buy now ". A message from MetaMask will appear asking for confirmation of the transaction (check the amount, otherwise press " reject ", refresh the page and try again).

How to choose cats

These cats have an important attribute, so pay attention to these characteristics when buying them. In addition, each cat has other characteristics such as generation number and cooldown value (recovery value after birth).

The number of generations indicates that a cat's generation was born from Gen 0. cat The Gen 0 cat was introduced into the game every 15 minutes (it now has a high price of about 7.7 ETH). If a Gen 0 cat is similar to another Gen 0 cat, its offspring will be Gen 1. If a Gen 1 cat breeds with a Gen 5 cat, its offspring will be Gen 6. A cat The higher the number, the worse and its value will be lower.

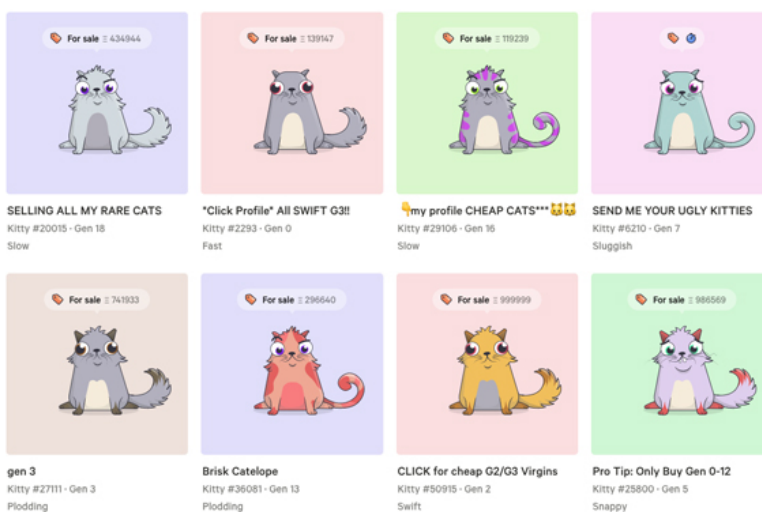

The cooldown value of a cat is a very important indicator, the word 'fast' to 'catatonic' is calculated and it indicates when a cat needs to rest before it can continue breeding. Therefore, players always want to own cats that can reproduce quickly. However, after each reproduction, the cat's cooldown index will decrease.

For example, a Gen 20 cat with "sluggish" (2-4 days) cooldown value is not a favorite cat unless they have some really rare characteristics. On the other hand, a Gen 1 cat with 'swift' value and possessing the "jaguar" and "chartreux" features is rare and it can be bred several times to create other rare cats.

Players should start with a cheap cat, which has generations from Gen 8 to Gen 15 and ensures cooldown values are not too bad.

How to breed rare cats

There are no specific tips on how to create rare cats. If easy, everyone can create "mainecoon" cats that sell for thousands of dollars each. Algorithms on how to create rare cat characteristics are secret, the game's developers claim that those who know it have been banned from playing. However, there are several ways players can apply to be able to breed a cat better.

First, players need to know that a cat's genetic material is actually 256-bits, and some specific characteristics will correspond to some of them. For example, cats' "zero" genes are usually number 5. The way genes transmitted from parents to children are secret, but somewhat similar to the way they work in biology, kittens often inherit traits from its parents. However, this is not always the case, a kitten can have a completely new trait that both parents do not have, for example a blue-eyed cat crossed with a cat. Having green eyes can produce a brown-eyed cat.

Finding out how it works is a hard job. Now, all you can do is guess and create cats as much as possible and hope for the best results. CryptoKittydex has a table of properties and their popularity. So even if someone sells a cat with the words "ULTRA RARE" (extremely rare), players can see this table and see if its properties are really rare.

Players should also know that there are no fixed algorithms for rare cats and game makers do not decide which cats are more expensive than which cats are due to the player's needs. One final advice, always check the dollar value before buying anything.

Is this article enough for you to take you to the cryptokitty journey? However, if you want to try this game, be careful. Currently, Vietnam will prohibit any form of payment using Cryptocurrency cryptography on January 1, 2018. Acts of using cryptocurrency to buy and sell products and goods may be guilty of criminal charges. the. So even though CryptoKitties is a fever in the world, you need to be knowledgeable about the laws and regulations, not to be involved in buying and selling virtual cats with cryptocurrency.
