Facebook now allows us to post status in multiple languages. However, to be able to write status with different languages ??on Facebook, users need to enable this feature.

To be able to refresh Facebook by the status lines, users can choose many color backdrops for the status that the Network Administrator has instructed you in the colorful Facebook postings tutorial. In addition, we can also use multiple languages ??to write status on Facebook.

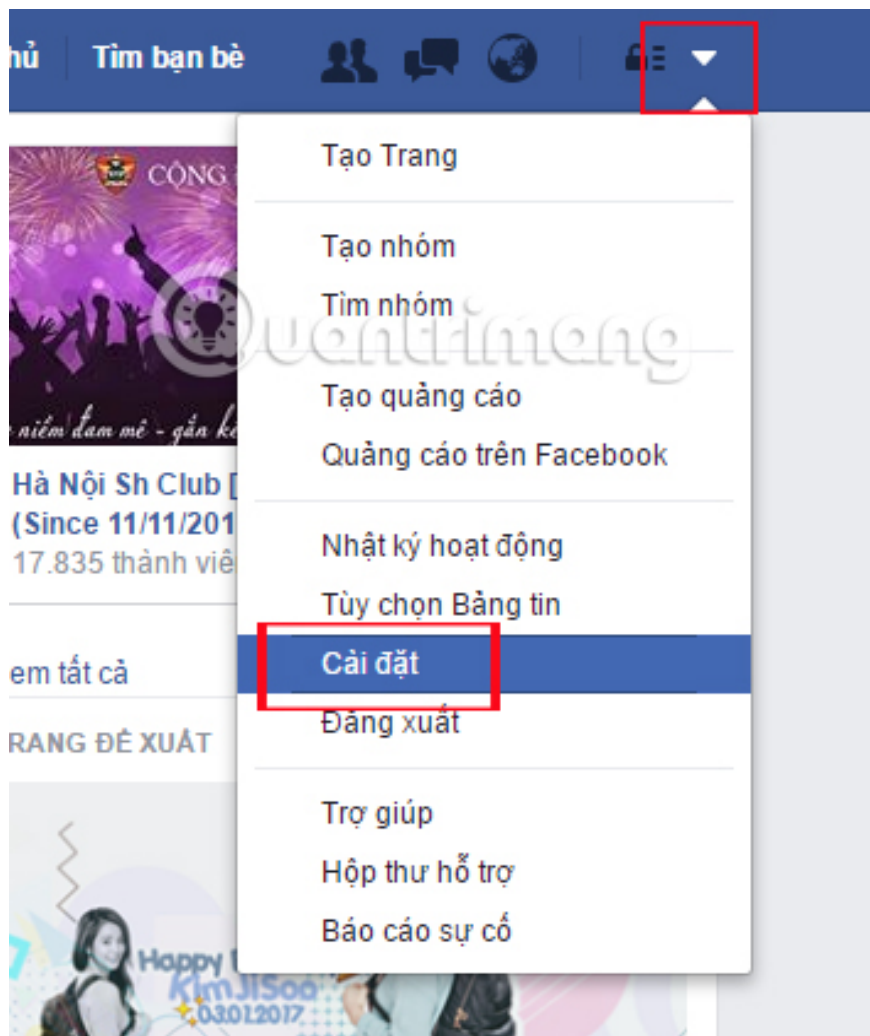

This feature has been provided to Facebook with the web version, but the default has been hidden. And if users want to write status on Facebook with many different languages, they must activate this feature. Step 4:

You return to the main interface on Facebook. At the status post, we will see an additional Posting line in another language as shown below.

Step 5:

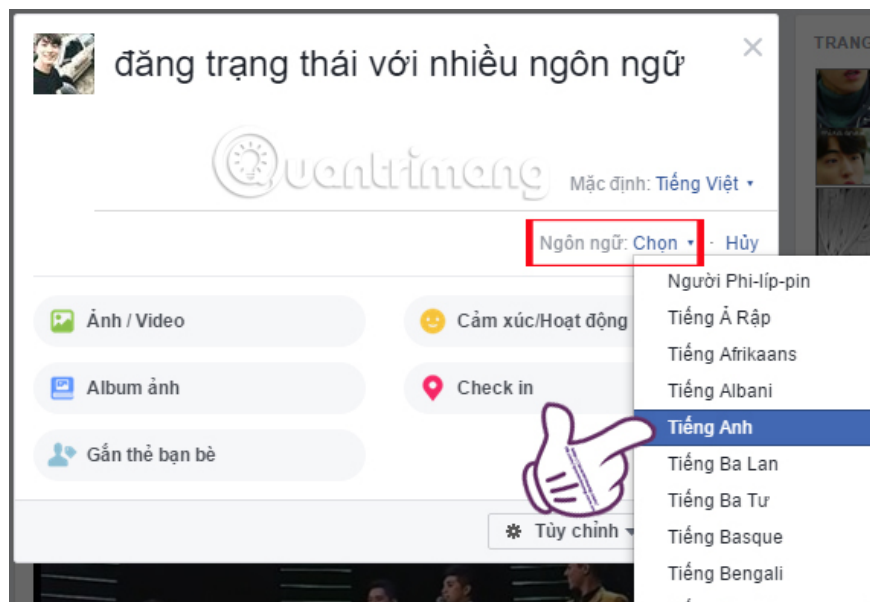

When we click on that line, you will see the default language in use is Vietnamese. If you want to switch the default language, you can click on the drop-down arrow and select another language.

Your next job is to post the status according to the default language on Facebook.

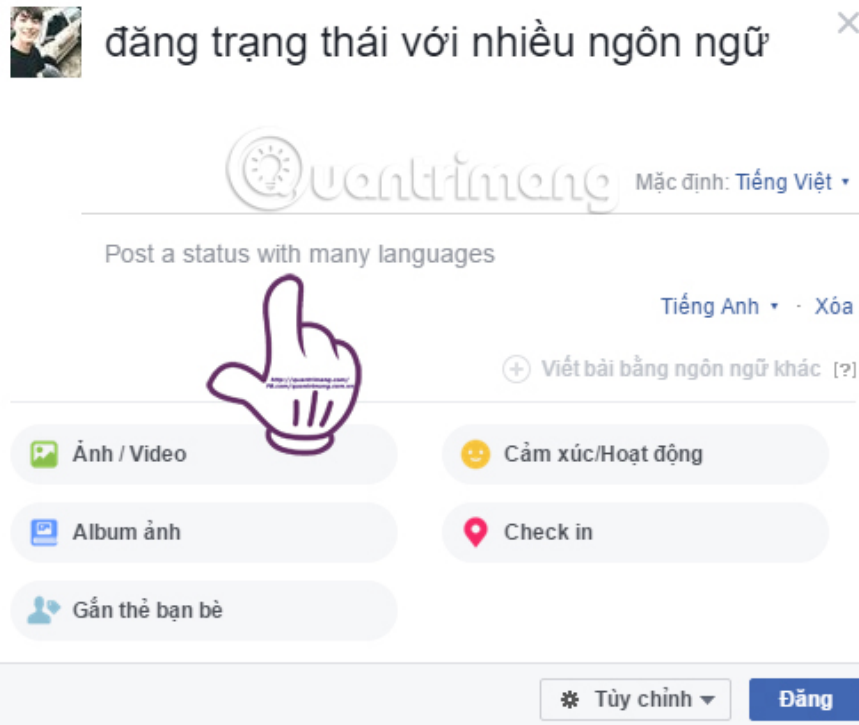

Step 6:

After you have finished writing the status with the first language, you look down at the Language section and click on Select to select the second language for status . We can choose any other language for the status line. For example, here I will choose English.

Immediately, the above Vietnamese status line will be converted to English as shown below.

You can continue to transfer that state to many different languages. As long as we click on Write article in another language, then select the new language.

Step 7:

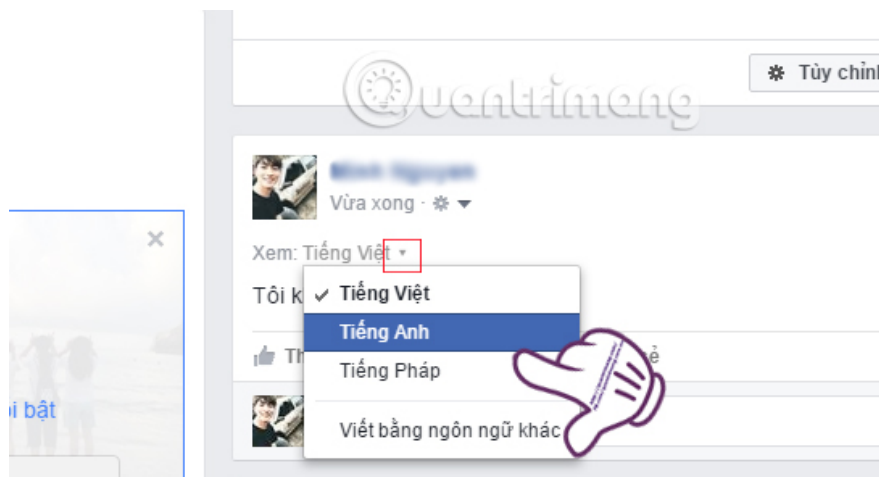

After selecting the languages ??for status on Facebook, we click Post or tag your friends, add your location and emotions like regular posts.

When you review that status on Facebook, it will first display the Default language, which I chose here in Vietnamese.

To view the status with another language , click on the arrow icon next to Vietnamese. We will see a list of languages ??that you have selected to post status. To view the status in another language, just click on the language.

Note to users, your friends will only be able to view the status posted with the Default language only.

If we want to cancel that feature , just uncheck the box at Create a post in multiple languages and click Save changes .
