

How to practice 10-finger typing online

Online ten-finger typing practice is the simplest method; you don't need to download and install complicated software, yet you can still improve your typing speed on a computer or laptop keyboard. Just dedicate a little time each day to practice, and you'll see the results immediately.

Nowadays, there are many software programs that help users practice 10-finger typing , but not all of them are free; some require payment or lack Vietnamese language support, which makes things quite difficult for users. However, with Typingtop.com , all these problems will be completely solved.

Practice typing with all ten fingers online for free.

Typing Top offers 10-finger typing practice online. You'll learn and practice typing through lessons, each divided into smaller sections or levels. This helps you familiarize yourself with the basic keys on your computer keyboard, making it easier to grasp the position of each key before practicing typing.

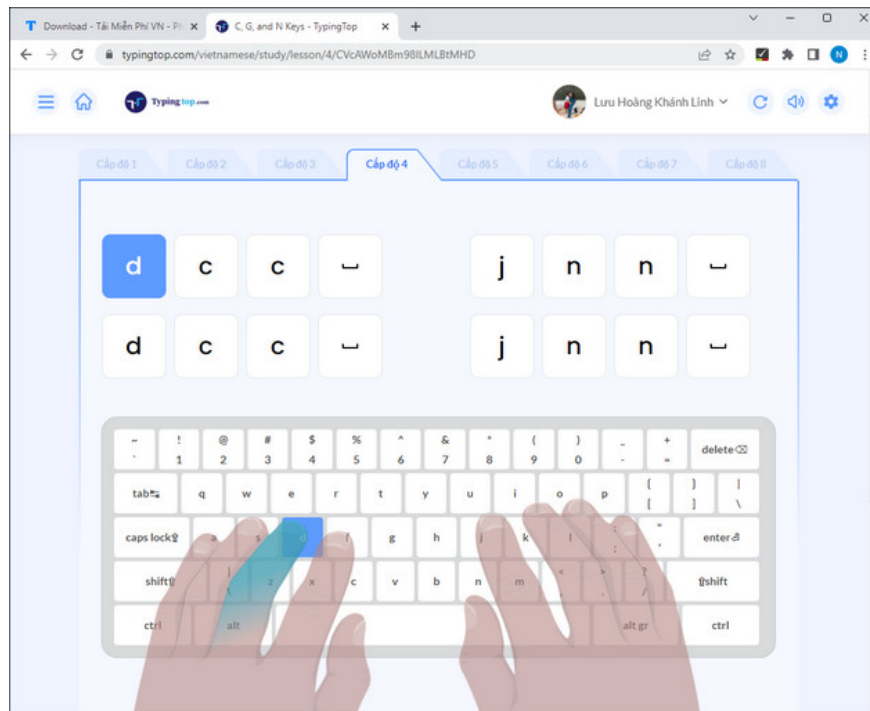

I. Basic notes when practicing 10-finger typing online

- Each finger is placed on a separate key.
- The main keys are the F and J keys. You can find these two positions without necessarily looking at the keyboard; feel for the small plastic part, a slightly raised "minus" mark on the F and J keys, then place your two index fingers on these keys.
- Place the fingers of your left hand on the A, S, D, and F keys. Place the fingers of your right hand on the J, K, L, and ; keys. -> This is the "main row of keys." Every time you press a key, remember to return your finger to the main row of keys. This will help you avoid looking at the keyboard. Remember these points.
