Many people still have the habit of deleting messages on Facebook. But if you accidentally delete some important message, or at any time want to retrieve deleted messages, how to do it? Facebook has the function to automatically save your messages as well as your chat history to storage. If you don't know how to use this feature, Network Administrator will guide you to retrieve all deleted messages in 2 different ways. Method 1 applies when you have stored your Facebook message before deleting, method 2 applies in case you have not stored it yet.

Method 1: Restore deleted messages on Facebook

This way you will get back a deleted message on Facebook. Note, the messages you delete by pressing "X" next to the message can be restored. The messages that you have completely deleted cannot be retrieved. So if you delete the message, instead of deleting the whole, delete it by checking the "X".

Step 1:

Log in to Facebook, at the main Facebook account interface, click on the message icon above.

Step 2:

We will click on View all below.

Step 3:

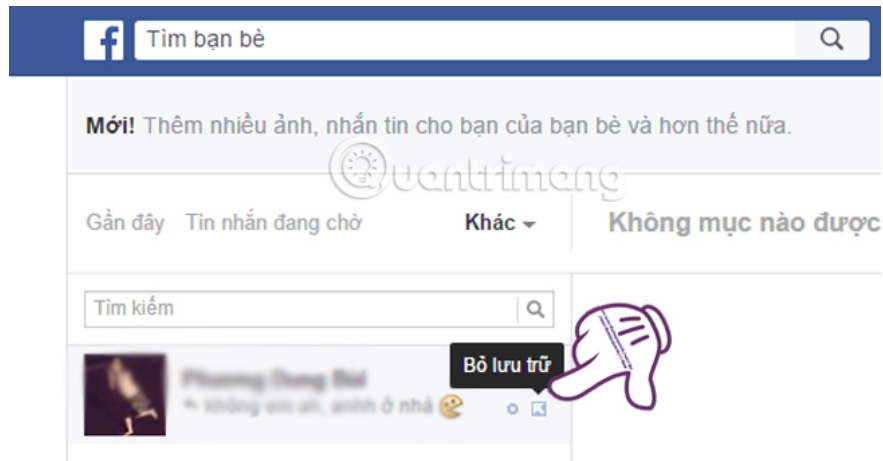

The message dialog interface appears. Here, we will click on the Other item in the left menu of the interface. Soon after 3 options appear, click Archived .

Step 4:

To retrieve it, we hover over the message, and click the Unarchive arrow . The message will return to the dialog box.

Since when you press the X to delete, those messages will be moved to another section, not completely erased, so they can be retrieved. Therefore, if you do not want to see that message temporarily, you should press the X to hide it, in case you need it again.

Method 2: Download the deleted message file on Facebook

In this way, we will retrieve many deleted information on the Facebook including posts, photos, messages, .

Step 1:

Log in to your personal Facebook account. Click on the arrow above and select Settings .

Step 2:

In the General section, scroll down and click the Download data copy section .
