

How to send audio messages on Twitter

The Twitter app now allows you to send audio messages in addition to the previous traditional method of sending messages. Sending audio messages on Twitter is also very simple, doing the same as other social networking applications such as sending audio messages on Instagram.

Then you don't need to enter a message if you can't text or want to send a long message. The following article will guide you to send audio messages on Twitter.

Instructions for sending audio messages on Twitter

Step 1:

First we access the messaging feature on the Twitter application by clicking the letter icon in the bottom corner of the screen. You will then see an introduction to this audio messaging feature on Twitter.

Picture 1 of How to send audio messages on Twitter

Picture 2 of How to send audio messages on Twitter

Step 2:

Now in the messaging frame we will see the audio message icon . We click on this icon to proceed with recording and sending messages.

Picture 3 of How to send audio messages on Twitter

Step 3:

You'll have a 137 second countdown to capture the texting sound. If you do not want to record the message anymore, remove this audio message, then click on Cancel. To stop the audio message, we click on the stop icon.

Picture 4 of How to send audio messages on Twitter

Step 4:

Then the user clicks on the send icon to send an audio message on Twitter.

Picture 5 of How to send audio messages on Twitter

As a result, you will see an audio message displayed in the chat frame as shown below. The recipient of the message just needs to press the play button to listen to the content of the audio message being sent.

Picture 6 of How to send audio messages on Twitter

You finished reading the article "How to send audio messages on Twitter" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

---