

How to set a wallpaper that doesn't cover your face on iOS 16 - following the trend.

As soon as you update your iPhone to the official iOS 16, you will be able to set iPhone wallpapers that don't obscure faces when adjusting the wallpaper with depth effects.

As soon as you update your iPhone to the official iOS 16, you'll be able to set iPhone wallpapers without faces being obscured when adjusting the wallpaper with depth effects. Normally, when setting iPhone wallpapers in previous iOS versions, the clock would partially cover the image, especially when using a picture of a person as the wallpaper. Additionally, in iOS 16, users can choose from many different wallpapers. This article will guide you on how to set a wallpaper without obscuring faces on iOS 16.

Instructions on how to set a wallpaper that doesn't cover faces on iOS 16

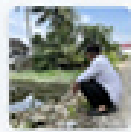

Note that availability of this mode depends on the specific iPhone model. If your iPhone doesn't have a portrait mode, it won't have a depth-of-field effect mode either.

Step 1:

You access the albums on your iPhone as usual, then tap on the image you want to set as wallpaper. Next, tap the "Set as wallpaper" option at the bottom.
