Lan Ho Diep is one of the types of ornamental plants that many people choose to display during the Lunar New Year because they not only bring a beautiful and noble beauty but also play for a long time.

However, after Tet, the branches of Lan Ho Diep are mostly dead or faded, unable to develop further because players do not know how to care.

Here is the method of taking care of Lan Ho Diep after Tet so that the tree will continue to flower and invite you to follow.

Step 1: When the flowers on the branches withered about 2/3, we use scissors to cut flowers. The most ideal cutting position to avoid pestilent plants is the way the eyes finally sleep on the flowers about 3cm. Note, when cutting need to be clever to avoid stamping leaves.

Step 2: Use scissors to completely remove the fungus leaves. For leaves that are yellow, rotten less than 1/3, use a sharp knife to cut off the broken part.

Step 3: At the rest of the sleeping eye, need flowers, use medical cotton to absorb a little Atonik medicine, wrap it around for about a week and then open it.

Step 4: Handle the root and roots. Withdraw the plastic gourd, use clean scissors to remove the rotten roots, keep the roots still fresh green. At all cuts, you can choose one of the following to apply, including: lime, nail polish, tree instantener, 502 glue.

Step 5: Put the original tree in the pot and use the fixed wire, do not let the tree wobble when holding the pot.

Step 6: Raise the stalks (orchid growing media) after handling the mushroom is poured around the pot. Take care to pat the stem slightly tight and open the stem to see how the roots grow.

Step 7: Put pots in a cool position, avoid rain.

Step 8: After 3 days to dry, water the entire basin once.

Step 9: Dilute Atonik or B1 fertilizer in proportion of 1/2 teaspoon for 20 liters of water. Use this solution to spray the plants with daily moist mist.

When you see young roots, usually after about 1-2 weeks, add a layer of soil into the pot.

After the tree grows stably, after about 1-2 months, it is possible to water and fertilize normally.
