How to disable Siri on iPhone, iPad

In addition to turning off Siri completely on iPhone or iPad, you can turn off specific options like disabling Hey Siri support or turning off using virtual assistants on the lock screen. The steps below will show you how to disable other features on Siri.

Disable Siri completely

To completely disable Siri, simply navigate to Settings> General> Siri , then touch the toggle button next to Siri and receive Siri off notifications.

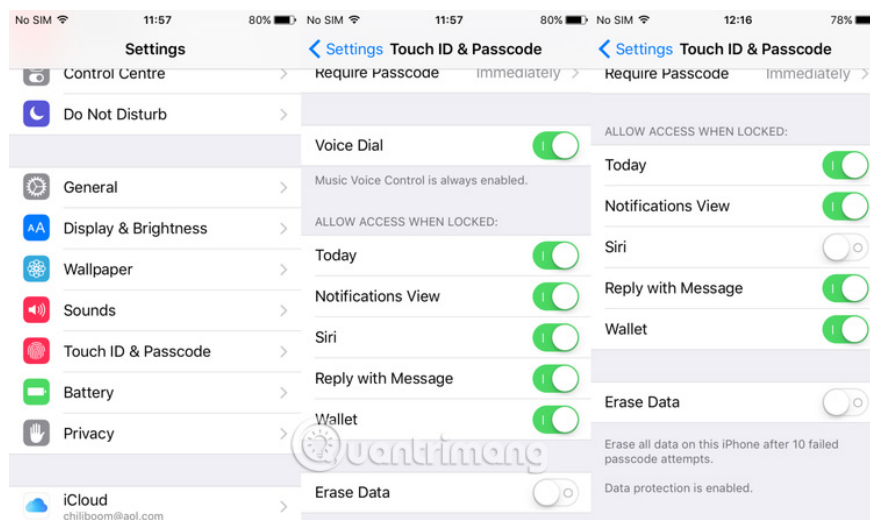

Disable 'Hey Siri'

If only Hey Siri feature makes you uncomfortable, you can completely disable it by accessing the menu as above on touching the convert button Hey Siri to turn it off.

Limit Siri access on lock screen

If you just want to turn off Siri on the lock screen, you can do so while still enabling Siri on your device. When Siri is turned on, navigate to Settings > Touch ID & Passcode (Touch ID on an older device), you will receive a password entry notification every time you access this part on your iOS device.

After deleting security, scroll down and you will see the option to turn on / off Siri, just touch this option to disable. Note, when disabling Siri on the lock screen, the Voice Dial feature will also be automatically disabled.

Disable Siri application suggestions

If you want to disable application suggestions that Siri suggests when searching in Spotlight, you'll have to move to another section in Settings.

To turn off application suggestions, go to Settings > General > Spotlight Search and turn off the Siri Suggestions option. This will prevent Siri from suggesting apps and other information before entering the search term into Spotlight, but will not stop app suggestions in the Notification Center.

To turn off application suggestions in the Notification Center, swipe down to access the Notification Center, swipe right to go to the Widgets menu (where the application is proposed), scroll to the bottom of the page and click Edit . From here, just click the red icon next to Siri App Suggestions and click Remove to confirm the deletion.

I wish you all success!
