

How to turn off the automatic opening introductory after updating Windows 10

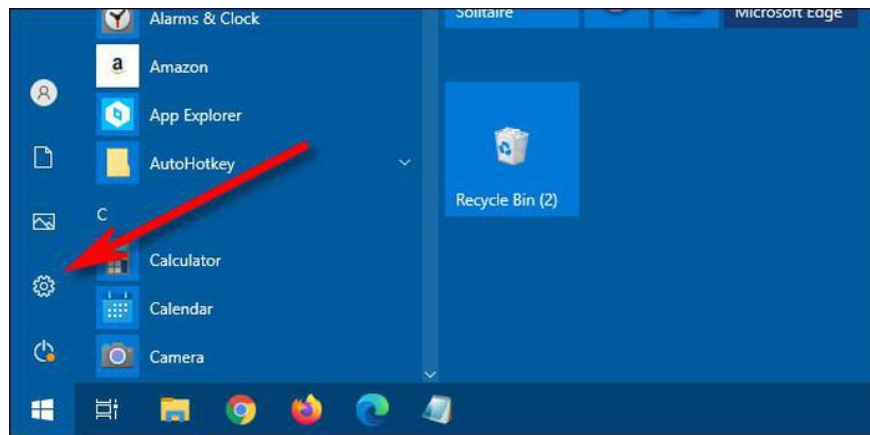

If you're bothered, you can easily turn off the auto-opening of the introduction window after updating Windows 10, so the experience will be more seamless.

After being updated to the new version, Windows 10 usually welcomes users with the Tips window, introducing new tips for using. This window may be useful for some people, but it also often annoys users.

If you are bothered, you can easily turn off the automatic window opening function, as well as some other windows after Windows 10 update, so the experience will be more seamless.

How to turn off automatic tip windows after updating Windows 10

First of all, open the Start menu, then click the little gear icon to open the 'Settings' section. You can also quickly open this item with the keyboard shortcut Windows + I.

First of all, open the Start menu, then click the little gear icon to open the 'Settings' section.

Under 'Settings', select 'System' => 'Notifications & actions'.

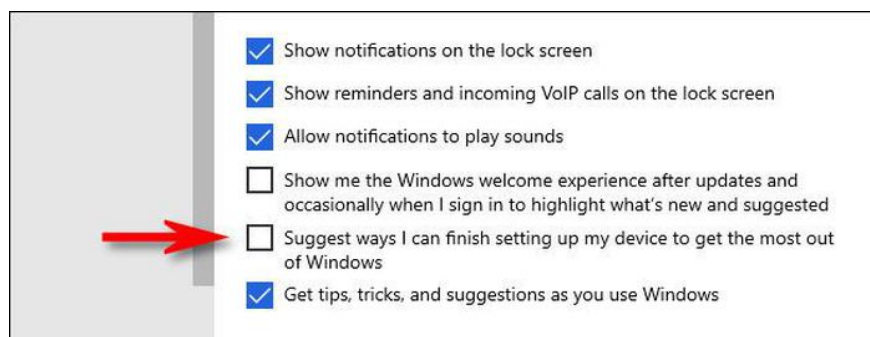

Under 'Settings', select 'System'.

Click 'Notifications & actions'.

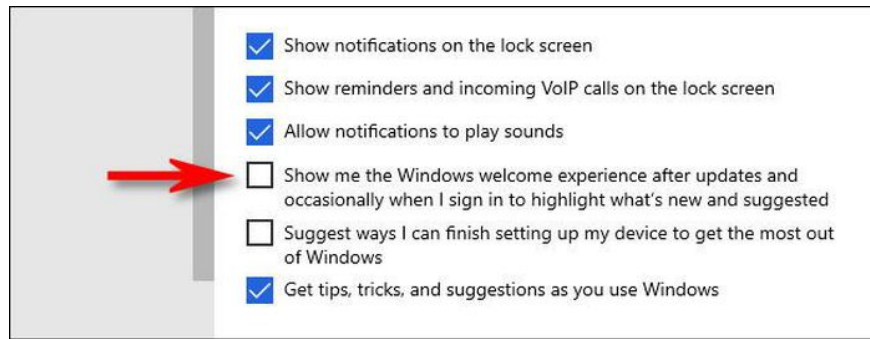

On the 'Notifications & actions' screen, uncheck the box corresponding to the option to automatically open the welcome window, write 'Show me the Windows welcome experience after updates and occasionally when I sign in to highlight what's new and suggested'.

Then you should no longer see the Windows 10 welcome window pop up automatically.

On the 'Notifications & actions' screen, uncheck the box corresponding to the automatic selection to open the welcome window.

For an even more seamless experience, you can automatically turn on and off the window suggesting how to maximize the operating system, 'Get even more out of Windows', by unchecking 'Suggest ways I can finish setting up my device to get the most out of Windows'.

For an even more seamless experience, you can automatically turn on and off the window suggesting how to maximize the operating system, 'Get even more out of Windows', by unchecking 'Suggest ways I can finish setting up my device to get the most out of Windows'.

You finished reading the article "How to turn off the automatic opening introductory after updating Windows 10" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.