

How to turn off the Samsung Galaxy S20 screen capture toolbar

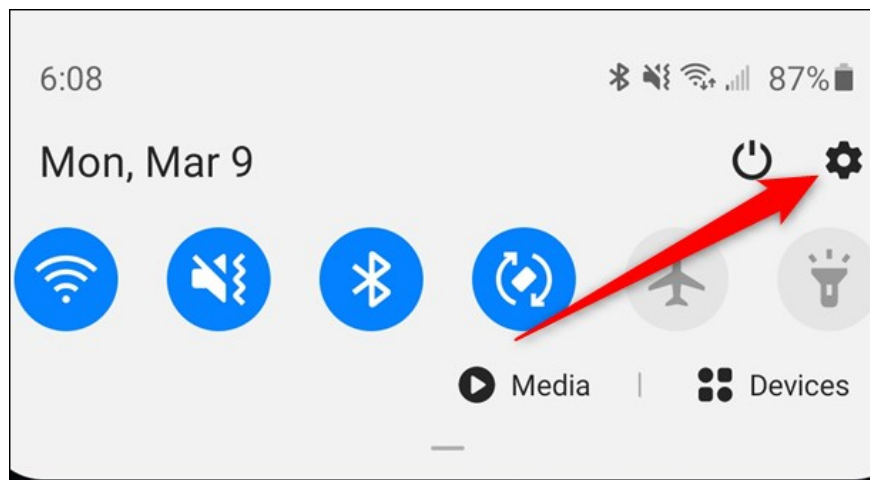

The screenshot toolbar on the Galaxy S20 appears directly below the screenshot for us to correct the image. So, what if I want to disable this tool?

When taking screenshots on Samsung Galaxy S20, S20 + and S20 Ultra will immediately display a toolbar with options to crop screenshots, share screenshots, or take screenshots scroll through 3 other icons together. This custom screenshot toolbar will disappear after a few seconds if the user has no need to use it. This screenshot editing toolbar is not really necessary, some people find it annoying to constantly show when you take screenshots. So how to turn off the custom screen toolbar on Galaxy S20?

Instructions for turning off the S20 screenshot toolbar

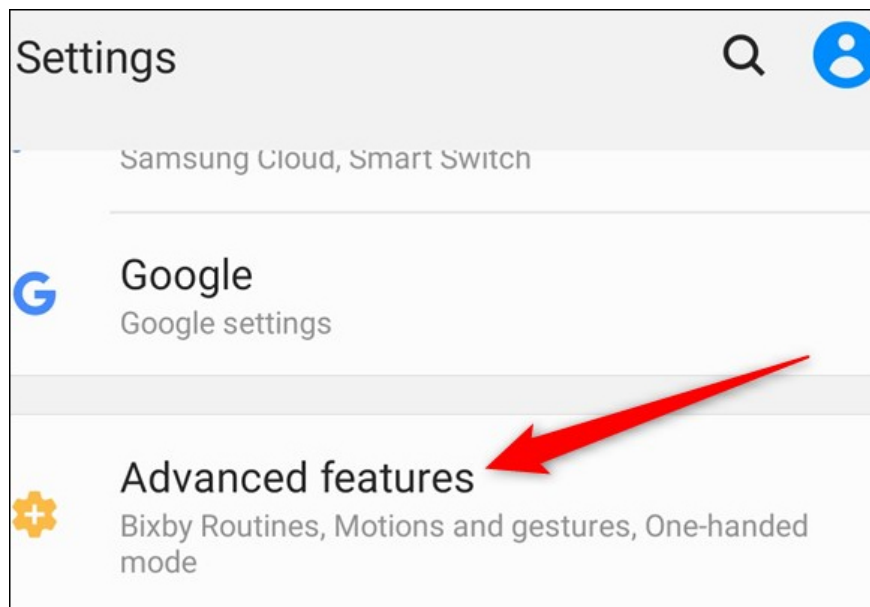

Step 1:

Users swipe the screen from top to bottom and then click the gear icon to access the Settings interface on the device.

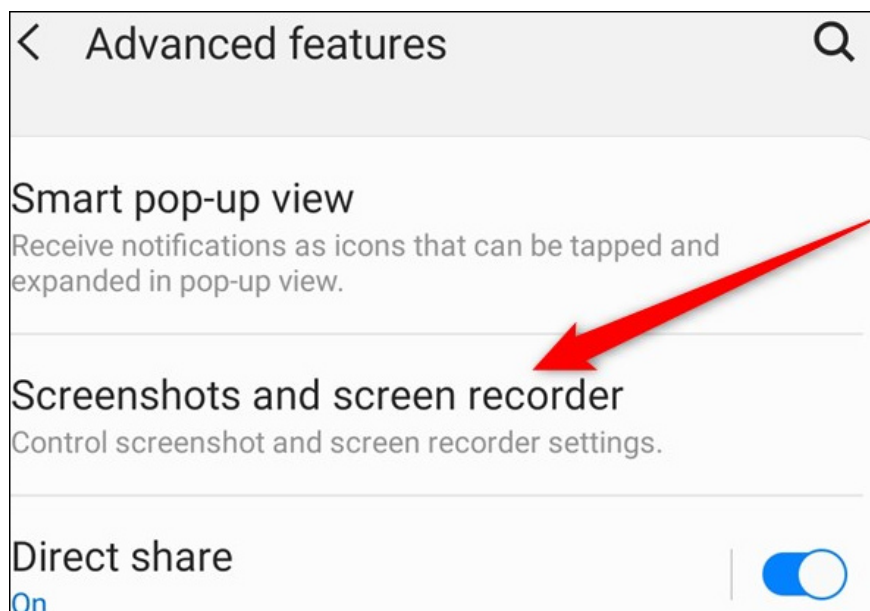

Step 2:

Switch to the new interface we find the Advanced Features setting group.

Step 3:

Next, click on Screenshots And Screen Recorder to change the settings for screenshots and video screens on the Galaxy S20.

In the setting interface we will see the setting content. In Screenshot Toolbar we turn the circle button to the left to disable this toolbar. In addition, in this interface, you can also change the screenshot format from the default JPG format to PNG, with a larger image size when leaving JPG.
