Instructions for typing Vietnamese with diacritics using the VNI method.

Step 1:

First, you need to install Unikey to type Vietnamese on your computer. Then, open the Unikey interface and select the character encoding as VNI Windows .

Change the typing style to VNI .

Step 2:

Next, the user needs to change the computer's system font to English .

Step 3:

Open Word and adjust the character encoding. Users need to remember that the chosen character encoding must match the font used. This is essential to type Vietnamese characters with diacritics without spelling errors.

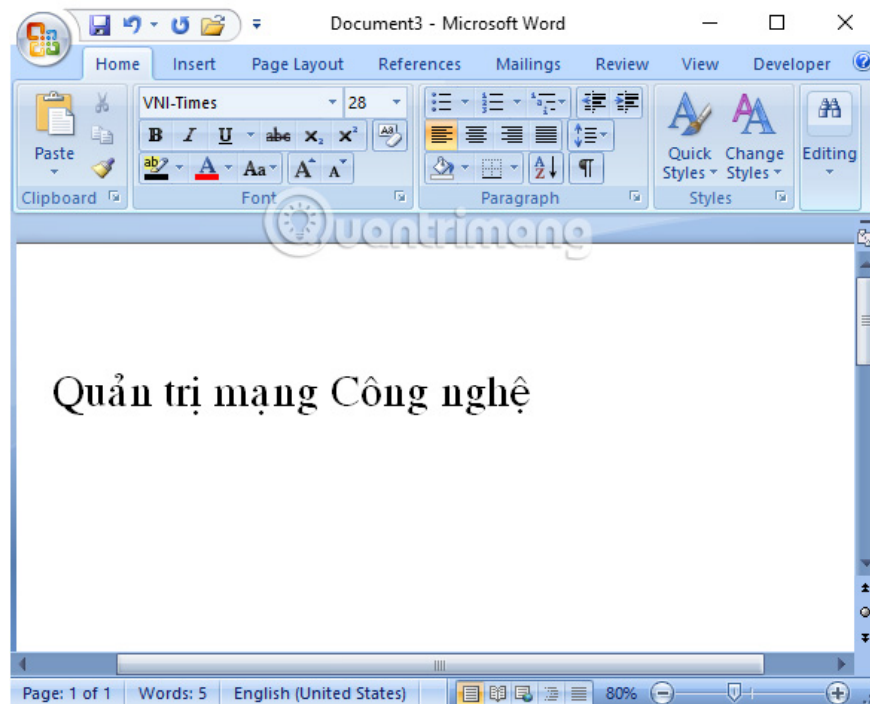

1. The Unicode character set includes common fonts such as: Time News Roman, Tahoma, Arial, Courier...
2. The VNI Windows character encoding includes common fonts that begin with "VNI," such as VNI-Times...
3. The TCVN3 character encoding table (Vietnamese Standard 3) contains fonts that begin with the .vn prefix, such as Vntime, VnTimeH, etc.

In Word's font settings, select a font that starts with VNI. If you don't already have the VNI font set, download it from the link below.

1. Download the complete VNI font set.

Then we just enter the text and we're done.
