

HTC donates 100 GB of Google Drive storage to new customers

HTC has just announced it will increase free storage capacity on Google Drive cloud service to double with customers who buy medium and high-end phones of the company.

HTC has just announced it will increase free storage capacity on Google Drive cloud service to double with customers who buy medium and high-end phones of the company.

Accordingly, customers who buy new mid-range and high-end phones from HTC will be offered 100 GB of free storage on Google Drive cloud service for two years. To receive this promotion, users simply launch the Google Drive app pre-installed on newly purchased devices.

This program is valid for most of the company's mid-range and high-end devices, including One (M8) , Desire 816, Desire 610 and One Max.

In addition, customers who buy phones from 2013 will get 25 GB of storage on Google Drive when updating the user interface Sense 5 + or Sense 6. The phone list entitled to this policy includes One (M7) , Butterfly S, One mini and Desire 60.

Besides this program, HTC also provides a free screen replacement service for customers in the US through the HTC Advantage program.

You finished reading the article "HTC donates 100 GB of Google Drive storage to new customers" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.