

HTC officially sent invitations for the launch event M8

HTC has officially sent an invitation to the media to attend their HTC M8 smartphone launch event.

HTC has officially sent an invitation to the media to attend their HTC M8 smartphone launch event.

Accordingly, the next high-end smartphone expected to be Samsung Galaxy S5's rival will be released on March 25th at two concurrent ceremonies in New York and London.

With the above plan, Taiwanese technology company showed their boldness when not launching the 'nailing' device at MWC 2014 event, when MWC was an annual exhibition for smartphone companies to show off their new products. they.

According to some sources, M8 will be the first HTC device to have a "on-screen" button -on-screen design that replaces traditional capacitive buttons, and is equipped with a screen. 5-inch size with full HD resolution, with new Sense 6 interface application from HTC and pre-installed Android KitKat operating system.

In the invitation to send, HTC did not disclose the official name of M8.

You finished reading the article "HTC officially sent invitations for the launch event M8" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

---