Huawei has just confirmed that the launch event of its flagship smartphones P40 and P40 Pro will be held online, at a global online press conference.

Huawei has just confirmed that the launch event of its flagship smartphones P40 and P40 Pro will be held online, during a global online press conference, held on March 26. Huawei's previous plan was to host the event. launch event in Paris, France. However, due to the outbreak of the Covid-19 virus in Europe, Huawei's launch event will be turned into an online press conference.

Not long ago, Xiaomi also had to organize the launch event of Mi 10 and Mi 10 Pro on an online platform, instead of a monumental event. Meanwhile, Huawei also launched its new Mate XS and Matebook laptops in an online event.

Huawei's upcoming P40 and P40 Pro launch event will be very noticeable. Because so far, Huawei's flagship smartphone is still confidential. All we know is that the P40 and P40 Pro will have many improvements focused on the camera.

A few leaked information recently revealed that Huawei P40 Pro will be equipped with a customized 52MP CMOS IMX700 sensor. Featuring 16-pixel matching, which means that you can produce super-sharp 3.25MP photos and impressive low-light shots. The P40 Pro will have a focal length of 18-240 mm, wider than the 24-125 mm of the P30 Pro.
