

Image confirmation Microsoft will give up the Windows Phone brand

An image has just been revealed that Microsoft will no longer use the Windows Phone name for its mobile operating system, the new name is simply Windows.

An image has just been revealed that Microsoft will not use the Windows Phone name for its mobile operating system anymore, the name is simply "Windows".

Information about Microsoft will merge Windows Phone and Windows into a seemingly confirmed, based on the leaked image allegedly the back of the upcoming My Go GoPhone GF47W. Instead of using the name "Windows Phone", Microsoft probably left the word "Phone" instead of just "Windows".

In fact, this change has been forewarned through the Windows Phone version of the HTC One M8. The official name of the device is HTC One M8 for Windows, not for Windows Phone. Last week an internal document also showed that Microsoft will remove the Nokia brand from its upcoming Windows Phone product lines.

The image of the My Go Go Pro has been removed from the My Go website, it is also stamped "CONFIDENTIAL" - "Secret", it seems that the current problem will only be time until Microsoft Official announcement of the above information.

You finished reading the article "Image confirmation Microsoft will give up the Windows Phone brand" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.